As all the first part of this book is an extract from the history of the Buckingham family, by Rev. F. W. Chapman, published in 1872, I give his preface, as follows: J. B.

PREFACE.

“Something more than twenty-five years ago, the compiler of this work, at the solicitation of Robert H. Chapman, of Saybrook, commenced making researches with a view to publication of the history and genealogy of the Chapman family in America. As the family were extensively connected with other families of the early settlers, a thorough examination of the records led to great familiarity with all of the families of the town whose ancestors located there previous to 1700. After the “Chapman Family” appeared in print, the author was led to prepare the genealogy of the families of Pratt and Buckingham, who were contemporary with his Puritan ancestors. The “Pratt Family” was issued from the press in 1865. At about that time the author was employed by Senator William A. Buckingham to complete his collections, which had already been commenced, of the descendants of Thomas Buckingham, who settled first in New Haven, and removed to Milford in 1639, and whose son, the Rev. Thomas Buckingham, located at Saybrook in 1665. After having made very extensive researches, he found that Rev. Dr. Samuel G. Buckingham, of Springfield, Mass., and Charles Buckingham, of New York, had, in concert, some twenty years ago, made quite large collections, with a view, at the time, to publication at some future day. Their collections were finally passed into the author’s hands, and compared with his, which had been much further extended, and were happily found, in all essential particulars, to correspond. This circumstance, we think, gives essential value to the work, as it is the result of a vast amount of labor, which has been successful in producing a memorial of inestimable value to the family. It is worthy of notice that all of the Buckinghams of the country have been located in their appropriate place in the regular line of descent, with the exception of a few families descended from one William Buckingham, of Pennsylvania, who claim that they belong to a distinct race, but whose account of their ancestor appears so confused and unreliable as to lead us to the conclusion that they are from one of the descendants of Thomas Buckingham, of Milford, that wandered off from the family hearth as late as the third or fourth generation.

The task of collecting the materials for this memorial has, of course, been laborious, beyond what anyone can realize who has not performed a similar labor. Months have been spent in searching the town records of Saybrook and Milford, as well as the burial grounds of these and other towns, particularly Waterbury and New Milford, where large numbers of the name have resided and still reside. The oldest and largest libraries of New Haven and New York have been visited. The probate records of Milford, New Haven, Old Saybrook, Guilford, New London and Hartford thoroughly examined; also the records in the office of the Secretary of State, and the State Library at Hartford. In addition to this, several hundreds of families have been visited, to gather up their family records, and all facts of interest that could be reached, and over one thousand letters have been received in answer to about twice that number written. The compiler assures the numerous living descendants of Thomas Buckingham that he has spared no pains to make a perfect record. Perfection, however, in such work, cannot be expected. Great difficulty has often been experienced in deciphering old records and inscriptions, and in reading some of the letters received from aged persons and others unaccustomed to epistolary correspondence. Often, too, the statements in regard to ages, dates of birth, marriage and deaths of the different branches of a family, have conflicted with each other. In some instances no dates can be found, in which case we have attempted only an approximation to accuracy.

It is extremely difficult to avoid mistakes in printing a work containing so many figures, even when the copy is complete.

With few exceptions, we think it will be found that a full and exact record is given. There are, of course, many of the younger generations now on the stage, who have been born within the last few years—since the preparation of this work—which are not included, and many have deceased since the last intelligence received.

The special thanks of the compiler are due to several persons who have aided him in his researches.

To Hon. William A. Buckingham—without whose munificence the work would not have been published—and to his brother, Rev. Dr. Samuel G. Buckingham, of Springfield, Mass., for the use of his extensive manuscripts, collected by him and Mr. Charles Buckingham, of New York.

To Mr. James Buckingham, of Zanesville, Ohio, who furnished, as the result of his deceased brother's labor for many years, Benjamin H. Buckingham, a manuscript volume of some four hundred names, a large number of them descended from Ebenezer Buckingham, who with his numerous family located in the wilds of Southern Ohio in the early part of the present century.

To Judge Jerome Buckingham, of Newark, Ohio, for forwarding with much care, the members of his family, and many others more remotely connected.

To the Rev. Dr. Ebenezer Buckingham, of Canton, Ohio, for his correspondence, and the general interest manifested in the success of the enterprise.

To Mr. Henry Buckingham, editor, in Leavenworth, Kansas, for aid in collecting records in his branch of the family.

To George Loveland, Esq., of Wilkes Barre, Pa., for similar labor.

To Miss Mary E. Buckingham, of Paupac, Pa., for extensive correspondence and aid in collecting the descendants of Ambrose W. Buckingham in the State of Pennsylvania.

Also to Mr. Charles J. Buckingham, of Poughkeepsie, New York, for efficient aid in collecting the descendants of Jedediah Buckingham, of Columbia; and to the numerous Town Clerks and Clerks and Judges of Probate, who have given free access to their records.

The work is submitted to the numerous members of the family, in the hope that it will be acceptable, and that it may stimulate the present and future generations to emulate the piety, the love of civil and religious liberty, and that devotion to the common welfare of all which characterized their Puritan ancestor and his more immediate descendants.

All numbers before 1337 refer to persons in the Buckingham Book as published by F. W. Chapman, and we use the same numbers for the same persons as in that book, down to (the ninth generation) the great-grandchildren of Ebenezer Buckingham, No. 1337. The last number of the old book used is 2678.

EBENEZER BUCKINGHAM.

JAMES BUCKINGHAM.

THE BUCKINGHAM FAMILY.

The name Buckingham,* according to Cambden, was derived from Bucen or Becen, or Beechen — beech trees — and ham, a village, from the number and size of beech trees. In later editions the editor makes it mean the home of deer.† With this agree Bosworth and Gorton. In his Anglo-Saxon dictionary, Bosworth has one mode of spelling the name, Buccingham, and also Buccheheim. Gorton in his Topographical Dictionary of England, says of the name of the county, “It is supposed to derive its name from the Saxon word, Buccen, from the great number of deer which abounded in its forests.” The name of Buckingham as a family name, is no doubt derived from the county of Buckingham, in England, the shire town of which is also Buckingham. The dukes of the name derive their title from the county.

In the catalogue of Cambridge University, England, are found the following names: John Buckingham, Jes., A. N., 1669; Dennis Buckingham, Car., A. N., 1763; Chandos Buckingham, (Marcho) L.L.L., 1819.

Many of the family in this country have filled honorable and important stations. Eleven have graduated at Yale College, and several at other colleges and seminaries of the country, and a large number have distinguished themselves in the learned professions.

*It has been a tradition of the family that their ancestor was a Welchman. It is so recorded of his son, Rev. Thomas Buckingham, on the Saybrook Church Records, and copied by Dr. Field in his statistics of Middlesex county, that he “was of Welch extraction.” As the old records of the Saybrook church are lost, if there ever were any, and those they now have are of comparatively recent origin, they are only equivalent to the common tradition. The name is, evidently, an old English name, and we should naturally look for it somewhere in or near the county of Buckingham. The impression that he came from Wales arose, doubtless, from the fact that Mr. Prudden came from Hertfordshire, the west part of England, contiguous to Wales, where he preached, and many good people followed him, that they might enjoy his pious and fervid ministrations. By looking, however, at his lot at New Haven, it will be seen that it was not assigned him in the “Hertfordshire Quarter,” as it was called, which Mr. Prudden’s Company occupied, but is found in “Mr. Gregson’s Quarter.” Now Mr. Gregson was a London Merchant, and Buckinghamshire being near to London, here is where we might naturally find him, supposing this to have been his origin. He afterwards joined Mr. Prudden’s company, in settling at Milford, though not originally of their number.

†May there not be an allusion to this in the fact that the crest on the family Coat of Arms is a deer or stag’s head.

FIRST (1) GENERATION.

THOMAS BUCKINGHAM, the puritan settler and ancestor of all* the American Buckinghamhs, was one of the company to which Eaton and Hopkins, two London merchants, and the two ministers, Davenport and Prudden, belonged.†

They sailed from London in the two ships, the Hecor and the ———. They arrived at Boston, June 26, 1637, and on the 30th of March following (1638), this company sailed for Quinnipack, now New Haven, where they arrived in about a fortnight, or in April, 1638. Here we find the name of Thomas Buckingham, under the head of "Names of Planters and Division of Land according to Estate and Heads in Families," from which it appears that he had four persons in his family, an estate of £60 (or his interest in the enterprise), and, in the first division, he received thirteen acres of upland, two and one-half on the neck, and five of meadow, and in the second division, twenty acres and his yearly rate for land, 10s. 2d. (Vide New Haven Town Records, Vol. 1, page 18 of the copy.) His house lot was in what is called "Mr. Gregson's quarter," or the square included between Chapel and Crown, and Church and College streets. George street has since been cut through the quarter, running parallel with Chapel and Crown, and there are circumstances that render it probable the house stood on or near what is now the corner of College and George streets. If so, it was the lot on which Dr. Lyman Beecher was born. (Vide book of the New Haven Jurisdiction begun in 1652.) The aforesaid land is referred to as "Goodman Buckingham's land that was," in 1683, and with the barn, inventoried at 35. And in 1700 it is referred to as "that one lot which was Mr. Buckingham's." The title to this property is easily traced. In 1653, January 3d, Thomas Buckingham, of Milford, deeds to Jeremiah Whitell, his house and house lot in New Haven. In 1653, March 7th, Jeremiah Whitnell deeds to Thomas Mitchell "the house and house lot bought of Thomas Buckingham." And in 1659, Thomas Mitchell wills his property to his wife, and daughter, Elizabeth Mitchell.

In 1682, Jeremiah Whitnell wills it to Philip Alcock and wife, and April 23, 1700, Philip Alcock, baker of Wethersfield, deeds to *Except some known to have emigrated from England to Maryland, in 1797, and some from there settled in Pennsylvania, and from there to Franklin Co., Ohio, and Fulton Co., Ind., and probably other places.

†The annexed Coat of Arms has been in the family, as is said, from the first settler down, but it is not known to whom, or for what achievement it was granted. (Furnished by Hon. Wm. A. Buckingham.)

John Alcock (his son), "for fulfillment of the will of my deceased father and mother-in-law, Jeremiah and Elizabeth Whitnell, that one lot which was Mr. Buckingham's, and part of that lot which was Mr. Welch's square up with Mr. Buckingham's."

The only other mention of the name found on the New Haven Records while he remained there, is the following: February 5, 1639, "Mr. Wilke is ordered to pay Thomas Buckingham 5 bushels and a half of Indian corn destroyed by Mr. Wilke's hogs." (p. 18.)

Thomas Buckingham removed to Milford in the autumn of 1639. He was one of the company of which Mr. Peter Prudden was the pastor, who first settled that town. The church was organized at New Haven August 22, 1639, and Thomas Buckingham was one of the seven pillars of which it was composed. The church records of Milford commence as follows:

MILFORD.

"The Church of Christ, at Milford, was first gathered at New Haven, upon August 22, 1639. The persons first joining in the foundation were those whose names are next under mentioned:

Peter Prudden, William Fowler, Edmund Tapp, Zachariah Whitman, John Atwood, Thomas Buckingham, Thomas Welch." The following marginal notes also appear on the church records: "John Atwood, died in England, July, 1654. Edmund Tapp, died at New Haven, 1643. Mr. Prudden, died July, 1656. Thomas Buckingham, died at Boston, 1657. William Fowler, died in 1660. Mr. Whitman, died April 25, 1666. Thomas Welch, died August 12, 1681."

His name stands the fifth on the list of Free Planters, bearing date November 29, 1639. His house lot, containing three acres, was a little above the Second Congregation meeting house, to the right and on the corner where the old Bryan house now stands (1849), and is still in possession of his descendants on the mother's side.

In volume 1, page 4, of Milford Town Records, is "A division of land among the several planters in rate of 4s. per acre assessed upon it, Nov. 22, and Dec. 6, 1643. Thomas Buckingham, home lot 3 acres upland, 17½, meadow 8." Page 11, May 18, 1646. "This court doth give Thomas Buckingham a piece of meadow land that layeth at the end of the fence, against Bush Plain."

From the records of the colony it appears, "Feb. 24, 1657, Robert Treat and Thomas Buckingham were the deputies to the General Court."

May 26, 1657. "A question was brought before the court concerning some fence, in difference, betwixt Thomas Buckingham and Widow Plumb, of Milford," which Thomas Buckingham and Richard Baldwin, brother of Widow Plumb, adjusted, by agreeing to maintain each a certain portion of the fence. "With which agreement the court was satisfied, and desired them to live in peace and love, and as neighbors ought to do."

From the note on the margin of the Church Record opposite his name, it appears that he died at Boston, in the fall of 1657, "where he had gone," says one, "on business;" "where he went," says another, "for the church to seek for them a pastor." That his particular business was to find a pastor for the church was more than probable, as Mr. Prudden had died the year previous, and the church was without a pastor at that time. He appears to have made his will before taking his journey, which bears date Sept. 19, 1657. The following notice of his will is found in the records of the colony:

"May 23, 1659. At a Court of Magistrates held at New Haven for the Jurisdiction, the last will and testament of Thomas Buckingham, late of Milford, deceased, was presented, made the 19th, Sept. 1657. Subscribed by Mr. Leet, and by him witnessed to be the will and mind of the deceased."

"Also an inventory of the estate of Thomas Buckingham was presented attested, upon oath, before the court at Milford, by Ann Buckingham, the widow of the deceased, that it was a true inventory of all the estate and goods of her late husband, to the best of her knowledge, which amounted to £484 3s. 8d." Robert Treat and John Fletcher, appraisers, upon oath affirmed that "the appraisement was just according to their light."

Mr. Buckingham was twice married. First, to Hannah ——, in England, by whom he had five children. She died at Milford, June 28, 1646. Second to Ann —— . Unfortunately, the family name of neither of his wives has been found. His first wife, Hannah Buckingham, joined the church at New Haven, February 9, 1639, and died as above. His second wife, Ann Buckingham, made her will, which was presented to the court of probate bearing date, Milford, March 18, 1686-7.

(For an abstract of her will, see Appendix, Note A.)

He died in 1657, in Boston.

SECOND (*6) GENERATION.

REV. THOMAS BUCKINGHAM, youngest child of Thomas Buckingham, of Milford, the Puritan settler, and Hannah Buckingham, was probably born in the early part of the year 1646. His mother died, according to the church records, June 28, 1646, and he was baptized November 28th, the same year. Where he was educated is not certainly known. It is not improbable that he studied with Rev. John Whiting, of Hartford. He was married in Hartford, and preached in Wethersfield in the year 1664, when but eighteen years of age. An entry appears on the Records of that town, stating that the town voted to pay him "20 shillings per week" for a quarter of a year to come, for his help in the ministry. He commenced preaching in Saybrook a little before he was nineteen, quite early in the year 1665, immediately after the town had settled their difficulties with his predecessor, Rev. Jeremiah Peck, who succeeded Rev. James Fitch on his removal to Norwich. The earliest entries in the first volume of town records are made in 1661. The following entry dates February 19, 1661. "Journey to Guilford for Mr. Peck." Also May 5, 1662, "providing for Mr. Peck's supply for the year ensuing." "Aug. 20, 1662. Granted to Mr. Peck an hundred pound accommodation, both upland and meadow." The records also show that he bought eight acres of land in the town plot, and built an house thereon, and certain privileges were granted to him, on condition of his remaining five years. It appears that soon after this arrangement, a difficulty arose between him and the town, which finally resulted in his resignation. In "Style's Itinerary," consisting of three manuscript volumes, in the Archives of Yale College, is the following entry: "Jan. 30, 1665. Controversy with Mr. Peck settled. The town confirm and give him full possession of his accommodation." And immediately after we find: "Agreement to Mr. Thomas Buckingham, Feb. 14, 1665. Settlement by Mr. Peck's house, estimated £95 Sterling, and give him £60 of it; said Buckingham pay £35. Salary £60 per annum, in provisions; confirmed by the town 5th of March, 1665; and at same meeting, Lyme separated, having competency of land for 30 families.”

According to the first volume of Town Acts of Saybrook, Mr. Buckingham was not ordained and installed pastor of the church until the spring or summer of the year 1670, a little over five years from the time he commenced the regular supply of the pulpit. There were probably two reasons for this, his youth, and the difficulties encountered with Mr. Peck, which led them to give the candidate for settlement a thorough trial.

LANDS OF REV. THOMAS BUCKINGHAM.

The town in 1648, as a matter of convenience, divided the town lands into three sections called “Quarters,” of which the Oyster River contained what is now Old Saybrook. West Brook, the villages of Winthrop, Deep River, and Pataconck, or Chester. The pautapaug of Essex. The Black Hall Quarter, what is now the Town of Lyme. Each of the quarters kept land records additional to those of the town.

The following entries appear in the Oyster River Quarter Records “March 20, 1666-7: The committee grants to Mr. Thomas Buckingham the homake that lyeth at the mouth of Oyster River, upon this condition, that he shall use it, while he remains in the work of the ministry, and so successively to pass from him to the town again, to remain to the town’s dispose (disposal) for the benefit of the next that shall succeed in the work of the ministry at Saybrook, it be consented unto by the committee that what recompense is due to Mr. Buckingham, as charge, he doth expend upon the same homake as shall be judged by two indifferent men, shall be repaid to him at the time when he leaves it to the town, that is to say, so much as he has not had benefit thereby. The great homake is the homake that is intended in this righting.”

At a town meeting “Feb. 23, 1670, it was agreed and voted that Mr. Buckingham should have 10 acres of land for a pasture, being between Potapauge Path and the rocks westward, and so Northward up the brook, southward on the highway that goeth to the mill from Till’s Point, the land to be laid out by William Bushnell, William Lord, John Bushnell and William Bulliar, so to be laid out that no stated highway be damified.” It was also “agreed and voted that Mr. Buckingham should have ten acres of land for a pasture on the east side of Potapaug Highway, bounded on the south with the ends of the swamp, westward with the highway, and northward on the common, easterly on the swamp, commonly called the Great Swamp, taking so much of the swamp as may lay his land in a square. This land is in consideration of his laying down his former grant of the same quantity. William Lord and William Bushnell are to measure the land."

At a Quarter Meeting, "Dec. 26, 1687, it was agreed that Mr. Thomas Buckingham is received into Oyster River Quarter, one of the Proprietors, unto the value of 100 pounds accommodation; fifty account of the town grant to him, and the other fifty sold from the Quarter."

Feb. 6, 1687. The lands lying on both sides of the fishing brook branch running into the Great Bogs, being an hundred and fifty-nine acres, the length north-west, and by north 212 rods, on both sides. The breadth north-east and by east, and south-west and by west, 120 rods on both ends is, by mutual consent, granted to Mr. Thomas Buckingham and John Chapman, Esq., for each of them a hundred pound right of their first and second division."

At a Quarter Meeting, "March 2, 1703-4, then laid out to the Rev. Mr. Thomas Buckingham, a piece of land at the Mine Plain, by or near the Deep River, or on both sides of the Deep River. It is bounded north upon Joseph Pratt's land, late of Saybrook, deceased. The north-west corner is a bunch of small maple trees, which trees are the north-east corner of the land of Joseph Pratt, deceased, and the east corner is a great maple tree with the top broke of, standing on the east side of a small run of water, that runs into the Deep River. The south-east corner is a white oak, with stones laid about the root of it, which tree stands on the south side of a swamp, which the carts go over to fetch mine (probably iron ore). The south-west corner is a tree blown up by the roots, which stands by the south side of a brook. This land is in length north and south 80 rods, and width east and west 64 rods, so that in this division there is 32 acres of land, and is laid out to an 100 pounds right.

3d division of land by us measured for Oyster River Quarter.*

ROBERT CHAPMAN."

*The Probate Records of Windham also show that he was a large landholder in Lebanon, of lands which he probably received as a legatee of Attawanhood, son of Joshua Uncas.

The following are some of the entries in relation to Mr. Buckingham, and they show the disposition of the people in those early times, and days of comparative poverty, to make careful provision for the support of their spiritual guides.

“Feb. 3, 1667. Richard Tousley and William Lord were chosen to gather Mr. Buckingham’s rate.

“Feb., 1668. Goodman Bement and Mr. Nicholas are chosen for the gathering of Mr. Buckingham’s rate for the year ensuing.” Similar entries occur yearly.

“Dec. 24th, 1669. At the same meeting it was discovered and agreed by a joint consent from man to man, that the town would unanimously concur in the calling and settling of Mr. Buckingham in the office of a pastor to the Church of Saybrook, and do engage to pay the charge, according to the commendable custom of a rate as other charges are carried on.”

“March 16, 1670. It was agreed and voted that every hundred pound estate shall yearly, and till the town see cause to alter, carry in to Mr. Buckingham a load of good wood, and all men who are under the estate of an hundred, to cut or join in carting, according to their estate and the proportion of an hundred pound estate a load of wood as aforesaid, in order to his work, there shall be a rate made to direct men to their proportions.” At the time of this act the estates of the proprietors amounted to £5,500, which would secure to the minister 55 loads or cords per annum.

“Feb. 23, 1670. At a town meeting Mr. Wastall and William Pratt, Senior, did freely offer five pounds towards the charge of Mr. Buckingham—his ordination. Mr. Robert Chapman doth engage to the charge above said two pounds, ten shillings; John Pratt and John Clark do engage to the charge above said ten shillings; Robert Bate doth engage, Goodman Toosland doth engage five shillings to the charge above mentioned.”

At a town meeting Jan. 4, 1674, we find a second entry in regard to the minister’s wood. “It was agreed and voted that the town will for the future, in reference to Mr. Buckingham’s supply of wood one day in each year, at the appointment of the townsmen, employ themselves in cutting and carting of the wood to the house of Mr. Buckingham, and every of the inhabitants and traine soulders shall be injoinable to such work, provided that those that send carts shall only send one sufficient hand with the team, and the rest of the family freed, and the townsmen shall give a week's warning and to see that this affair be managed with the best prudence in suiting carts answerable to that cut."

No small difficulty was doubtless experienced in carrying out this order, for we find another act about four years later, in relation to the matter, as follows:

"Dec. 3, 1678. At the same meeting the town did agree and voat to add to Mr. Buckingham's maintenance ten pounds, in order to the supplying him with wood at 3 shillings a load to one hundred pound estate, to be paid at or before the last of December yearly.

An increase of salary was again voted in 1681.

"April 11, 1681. It was voted and agreed that there should be added to Mr. Buckingham's rate of maintenance ten pounds, beginning in the year 1681, and so forward."

The records also show that frequent grants of land were made to him as his family and expenses increased, so that he finally became, before his decease, quite a landholder. As his salary was paid mostly in produce, we find frequent acts were passed regulating the price of articles of provision in which he was paid. A single specimen will suffice.

"At a town meeting orderly warned, Dec. 28, 1697, it was agreed and voted that respecting Mr. Buckingham's rate, the inhabitants of the town shall pay his rate for the future as usuall, for good and merchantable winter wheat, 3 shillings a bushel, rye at 3 shillings a bushel, Indian corn 2 shillings and sixpence per bushel, pork at 3 pence per pound, beef at 2 pence, that being the esteemed current price in the commencement with Mr. Buckingham."

To show the estimation in which he was held by his townsmen, he was often appointed on committees in business of difficulty and importance, as being a judicious and wise counsellor, although pastor of the church.* For example, Mr. Richard Ely, one of the heirs of Col. Fenwick, had difficulties with the proprietors for a series of years, in regard to keeping the fences in repair between his land and other proprietors. It seemed to be a standing topic for discussion in town meeting for several years. The following is extracted from the records of a town meeting held Dec. 1671: "At a town meeting it was agreed that Mr. Ely should have liberty to debate with Mr. Buckingham and Mr. Chapman, who are appointed a committee to hear and give light to the town, if any appears, concerning the legality or illegality of the fence, imposed on Mr. Fenwick's legatees, still to be understood that the order of the townsmen, unless there appears the righteousness of the contrary, which thing is to be referred to a further debate in the town. The time set by the town for Mr. Ely is within 14 days."

He was one of the legatees of Attawanhood named in his will with Robert Chapman and William Pratt. (Vide Appendix, Note D.)

He was one of the founders and fellows of Yale College from 1700 to his decease, and a strong supporter of its interests. He evidently held a high rank among the clergymen of the time, and was one of the leaders in all efforts for the prosperity and extension of the church, and was one of the moderators of that famous synod which convened at Saybrook and formed the platform for the government of the churches in 1708.

Mr. Buckingham was twice married. First, to Hester Hosmer, daughter of Thomas Hosmer, of Hartford, September 20, 1666, in the 21st year of his age, by whom he had nine children. Mrs. Hester Buckingham died June 3, 1702. Second, to Mary Hooker, widow of Samuel Hooker, of Farmington, son of Rev. Thomas Hooker, of Hartford, and eldest daughter of Capt. Thomas Willet, of Swanzey, Mass., August 10, 1703.

He died April 1, 1709. (For an abstract of his will see Appendix, Note E.) His monument is still standing in the old burying-ground of Saybrook, bearing this inscription:

Here lies the body of the

The following is a copy of the inscription on the tomb of Mrs. Hester Buckingham:

STEPHEN BUCKINGHAM, born August 4, 1703, son of Daniel and Sarah (Lee) Buckingham, is recorded on the town records of Norwalk, Ct., as having married Elizabeth Sherwood, of Fairfield, Ct., Feb. 24, 1728-9. (She was born in 1708 and was the daughter of Lieut. Isaac Sherwood and Rebecca, his wife.)

A foot note says: “he was the son of Daniel Buckingham, of Saybrook, Ct. As his uncle Stephen was pastor of the church of Norwalk many years and had no children, it is probable that his uncle adopted him, or that at any rate he lived with his uncle and settled in life at

He removed to Chesterfield, East Jersey, according to a deed dated at Saybrook, June 5, 1754. Mrs. Elizabeth Buckingham died in August, 1792, at Cooperstown, N. Y., of "shaking palsy," aged 84, so says her grand-daughter, Sarah Buckingham Sprague, who lived with her.

Stephen Buckingham went on a sea voyage, for his health, in 1762 and the ship was never heard of afterward.

FIFTH (1337) GENERATION.

EBENEZER BUCKINGHAM, born November 1, 1748, at Greenfield, Ct., son of Stephen Buckingham (born August 4, 1703) and Elizabeth (Sherwood) Buckingham (born in 1708); married October 23, 1770, in Fairfield Co. Ct., to Esther Bradley, who was born February 28, 1754, at Greenfield, Ct. She was the daughter of Rev. Elnathan Bradley (born Jan. 21, 1729 and died Jan. 31, 1805. He was married October, 1751, to Sarah Goodsell, who was born March 4, 1734, and died April 11, 1762.)

At an early day, (supposed about 1779) they removed to a place in the south-east part of the State of New York, west of the Hudson river, called "Nine Partners." After a short stay there, they removed to Ballston, N. Y.; then again in June, 1794, to Cooperstown. Here they tarried until Christmas day, 1799, when his sons, Stephen and Ebenezer, having returned from Ohio in September, 1799, with such glowing accounts of the Muskingum valley, he concluded to remove out there. They left on two sleds, drawn by one yoke of oxen each, having with them all their children except Rachel, Sarah and Esther, who, being married, remained in the State of New York. A Mr. Spencer and wife accompanied them on another sled across the mountains to Pittsburgh, Pa., by the way of Cove Gap, where they waited six weeks for the ice in the Ohio river to break up, when the cattle were sent by land through what was then a wilderness, under care of his sons, Stephen and Milton, to Middle Island, just above Marietta, and the others of the family, with their goods and effects, descended in a flat-boat. Arriving in the spring, they shortly afterward, with other families, ascended the Muskingum river in their flat-boat and located at the mouth of Killbuck creek, at the confluence of the two streams, forming the first settlement in that region. This was some miles above the present town of Coshocton. The nearest white settlement was thirty miles down the river, at Zanesville southward, and Detroit far to the north. During a residence of two years the suffering from sickness was excessive, so great as induced them at last to remove to the mouth of Hoekhocking, on the Ohio, in the fall of 1802. Here they raised a crop of corn in 1803 and afterwards settled in Carthage Township, Athens County, Ohio. Here Ebenezer Buckingham resided until his death, October 24, 1824, aged 76 years, and was interred in the old Cooley burying ground, having raised a family of thirteen children.

He left his farm and property to his son, Milton, with whom he had spent the evening of his days. His widow, Mrs. Esther Buckingham, spent her last days with her son, Ebenezer, at Zanesville, Muskingum County, Ohio, where she died, June 25, 1827, aged 72 years, and lies interred in the lot of her son Alvah, in Woodlawn Cemetery, Zanesville, Ohio.

SIXTH (1487) GENERATION.

RACHEL BUCKINGHAM, born December 25, 1773, at Greenfield, Ct., daughter of Ebenezer Buckingham (born Nov. 1, 1748, at Greenfield, Ct.) and Esther (Bradley) Buckingham, (born Feb. 28, 1754, at Greenfield, Ct.); married February 11, 1792 at Ballston, N. Y., to Zattu Cushing, who was born June 11, 1771, at Plymouth, Mass.

Mr. Cushing emigrated to Chautauqua County, N. Y., and was the first Presiding Judge of the county, which office he held until his death, a period of about 17 years.

After marriage they went to Paris, Otsego County, and lived there until 1805; thence with his wife and five children and all his goods and chattels on two ox sleds, to settle in this wilderness of the Holland Purchase. For lack of roads, he attempted to make the journey from Buffalo on the ice, and when night suddenly closed down on them off Eighteen Mile Creek, with a rising storm which obscured vision in every direction, it was a critical time with a family which was to act an important part in our pioneer history, and whose descendants were to become prominent, two of them upon the brightest pages of our military and naval annals. Judge Cushing brought his oxen upon the windward side of the sleighs on the lake and prepared to pass the night, but fortunately had a tin horn with him on which he occasionally blew a blast. Two men heard it and came out with lanterns and piloted the party ashore. The next morning they saw the place where they had encamped was broken ice.

On their arrival here, there were only two families ahead of them, but one, McClintock, had articed the land that Judge Cushing had selected when he rode through this region a few years before, on his way to Presque Isle, where he built the first ship on Lake Erie. The Cushings accordingly moved into a deserted log cabin near the David J. Matteson place, on Temple St., Fredonia, N. Y., and cleared land on that side of the town, till a few years after, when Mr. C. bought out McClintock and settled on the land of his first choice, at the old homestead site on Eagle St. Judge Cushing was one of the principal men in the state, and was largely engaged also in farming.

Mrs. Rachel Cushing died of pleurisy, August 9, 1816, aged 42 years. After her death—by whom he had eight children—he married a second wife, and had by her four additional children. He died January 11, 1839.

Mr. Buckingham left home and went to Ohio in the spring of 1799, and in the fall he, with his brother, Ebenezer, returned to Cooperstown, N. Y., returning again to Ohio, with his father and family, in March, 1800.

Mr. Buckingham died of typhus fever, in Zanesville, Ohio, October 9, 1813, aged 37 years.

Mrs. Esther Buckingham died November 3, 1826, aged 44 years, and was interred by his side in the old Putnam burying-ground, and afterwards they were removed to Woodlawn Cemetery (Zanesville, O.). His gravestone says, "Benevolent and humane, he lived respected and died lamented." Her epitaph reads, "A humble follower of Christ, a liberal and constant friend to the poor."

SIXTH (1489) GENERATION.

EBENEZER BUCKINGHAM, born February 9, 1778, at Greenfield, Ct., son of Ebenezer Buckingham (born Nov. 1, 1748, in Greenfield, Ct.) and Esther (Bradley) Buckingham, (born Feb. 28, 1754, in Greenfield, Ct.); was married three times:

1st. November 27, 1805, in Marietta, Ohio, to Catharine Putnam, who was born October 17, 1780, daughter of Gen. Rufus Putnam. She died March 14, 1808, and was interred at Zanesville, O.

2d. March 31, 1812, in Fairfield, Ct., to Sarah Sturges, who was born December 4, 1786, daughter of Dimon and Sarah (Perry) Sturges. She died April 9, 1815, in Zanesville, Ohio, and was interred there.

3d. August 5, 1816, in Glastonbury, Ct., to Eunice Hale, who was born October 22, 1792, fifth child of Benjamin and Martha (Welles) Hale, whose acquaintance he made while she was visiting her cousin, Mrs. Dr. Reed, of Zanesville, Ohio. She died February 28, 1843, in Zanesville, Ohio, and was interred there.

Mr. Buckingham was killed August 21, 1832, and lies buried, by the side of his three wives, in Woodlawn Cemetery, Zanesville, Ohio.

Mr. Buckingham was one of the pioneers of Ohio. His ancestors, both paternal and maternal, were of the old New England Puritan stock. Thomas Buckingham, the ancestor of the American Buckinghams, arrived at Boston, June 26, 1637, and March 30 following, sailed for Quinnipack, now New Haven, where he arrived in about a fortnight. Of his children, it is necessary to mention but one, the youngest, and ancestor of the subject of this sketch, Rev. Thomas Buckingham, who was born at Milford, Ct., November 8, 1646. He was held in high esteem by his people, and was one of the founders and a fellow of Yale College from 1700 till his decease, and a strong supporter of its interests. He died April 1, 1709, at Saybrook, Ct. His monument is still standing in the old burying-ground of Saybrook, and also that of Mrs. Hester Buckingham, his first wife. Daniel, the third child of Rev. Thomas and Hester Buckingham, was born October 3, 1672, and married Sarah Lee, of Lyme, Ct. He was a prominent and useful member of the church, and died, March 25, 1725. His son, Stephen, married Elizabeth Sherwood, of Fairfield, Ct. (their home was for some time at Norwalk, Ct., where his uncle, Rev. Stephen Buckingham, who had adopted him, was pastor for many years). He was lost at sea in 1756. His widow died at Cooperstown, N. Y., in 1792, aged eighty-four years, in the home of her son, Ebenezer, who married Esther Bradley, of Greenfield, Ct.; and, after removing to a place west of the Hudson river, Nine Partners, thence to Ballston, N. Y., came, in 1794, to Cooperstown, N. Y., when Ebenezer Buckingham, Jr., the subject of this sketch, was about sixteen years old. The facilities for getting an education were limited in those days; but Ebenezer, Jr., made the most of his opportunities, and spent many of his study hours in his boat, floating on the clear waters of Lake Otsego. His favorite books were those on mathematics and surveying, having to walk several miles to his recitations, where he fitted himself for the first work that he was to undertake in the wilderness of the West. The exodus of the Ohio Company to the North-west Territory had aroused the pioneer spirit over all the country. The thirst for adventure and the hope of fortune, fostered by the Indian traditions among which he lived, took such possession of this lad (for such he was), that when he was eighteen years old, he bade farewell to his family, and started on foot across the Allegheny Mountains to find the El Dorado.

Early in the spring of 1796, he crossed the Ohio river from Williamsport to Marietta, with a small grip sack and an axe and $12\frac{1}{2}$ cents in his pocket, and walking up into the town, going to the first house he saw, which proved to be Gen. Rufus Putnam's, of Revolutionary fame, asked him "if he could give him some work," the answer was, "No, he did not know that he needed any help." He then told him he would like to do some work to earn his breakfast; the General told him "I see you have an axe on your shoulder, and there is a pile of wood which you can chop up for fire-wood until breakfast time, and I will give you your breakfast." While he was busy chopping this wood, the General's daughter, Kate, looking out of the dining-room window, said to her father: "Who is that good-looking young man out there chopping wood? He has now chopped more wood than that man you had yesterday all day." Shortly afterwards the General told his daughter, Kate, to call the young man in to breakfast, which she did. Afterwards, the General, finding how industrious he was, asked him if he knew how to drive oxen; he answered that he did. The General told him to yoke up the oxen and hitch them to that cart and go up to the base of the hill and haul some clay he would find there, until noon, and after dinner, they would make it into mortar and chink and daub the cabin next adjoining the General's. At noon time, having finished hauling the clay, he sprinkled some water over it, and from an adjoining corn crib he procured a small measure of shelled corn, which he scattered over the clay; just at that moment the General appeared, with a desire to know what he was throwing that corn there for; his answer was: "Do you see those hogs up there? While we are eating dinner they will come down here and rooting for that corn they will make the clay up into a nice pile of mortar," all of which amused the General very much.

The next day, the General went on a surveying trip on the west side of the river, taking him along as rodsman; and, on finding he was so adept and quick, he told him if he would stay with him, he would teach him surveying; in a few weeks time he was even a more expert surveyor than the General himself. At that period General Putnam had charge of surveying nearly all the south-east quarter of the State of Ohio. Whether the General was prepossessed by this circumstance or not, does not appear, but he was certainly kind and interested, and found a place for young Buckingham in a surveying party that started off in a day or two. In this trial trip he displayed such energy and skill as to quite win the heart of the General, who gave him other work, and admitted him to his family circle.

During the year 1798, Mr. Buckingham surveyed a large portion of Muskingum County, having William Nye as one of his assistants, and the meeting place of many of the surveyors, on Sunday, was at a place called Laurel Point, five miles southwest of Zanesville on the Maysville pike, and now occupied by the "Rolling Plain Church." The records at Columbus, Ohio, show that he was surveying Coshocton County in the fall of 1796. In the spring of 1799 his brother, Stephen, followed him to Ohio and assisted him that summer, and in September, of 1799, the two brothers returned to Cooperstown, N. Y., and by their glowing accounts of the new country, its delightful climate and productiveness, they persuaded the whole family, with the exception of the three children already married, to move with them to Ohio. The journey was a tedious one, and must have been trying in many ways. They started in December, 1799, and traveled on sleds as far as Pittsburgh, where they had to wait six weeks for the ice in the Ohio river to break up. The cattle were sent through what was then a wilderness, under the care of Stephen and Milton, to Middle Island, just above Marietta, and the family with their goods and chattels descended the river on a flatboat. Arriving in March, 1800, they shortly after, with other families, ascended the Muskingum river, and located at the mouth of Killbuck Creek, near the confluence of the Tuscarawas and Walhonding rivers, which there uniting, form the Muskingum. This was some miles above the present town of Coshocton, and the nearest white settlement was Zanesville, thirty miles down the river. The family remained at this place only two years, finding the locality very unhealthy, and, in the fall of 1802, they removed to Carthage Township, Athens County. In the meantime, Mr. Buckingham, who had no taste for farming, had established a trading-post at Coshocton, which town he surveyed and laid out. The Indians were quite friendly and familiar with the whites at this time; but their morality was not proof against the temptation to appropriate anything they wanted, if they could get it. They once stole some of Mr. Buckingham's horses and ran them off towards Lake Erie. He immediately pursued them alone through the unbroken wilderness to Sandusky, where, by the aid of a friendly chief, he succeeded in recovering his horses. He returned in triumph, riding on a bark saddle, and without a hat, and was warmly welcomed by his friends who had thought him lost. The early years of his life were full of interest and incident, "mingling with the aborigines of the country, and, to a considerable extent, using their language, or penetrating the interminable forest of the west, among men almost as wild as the beasts whose skins and furs he sought, and in the course of time, returning again to civilized society, and gracing its refined circles, the judicial bench and the legislative hall."

In 1804 he was made, by Jared Mansfield, then Surveyor General of the United States, his deputy; and was engaged in surveying a part of the State of Indiana, around Vincennes. In 1805 he started a trading-post at what was then called Springfield, now Zanesville, in a two-story log cabin, which stood on Muskingum Avenue, just above the Sixth Street bridge, and on November 27, 1805, he returned to Marietta and married Miss Catharine Putnam, the same young lady who had called him to breakfast nine years before. At the birth of his only child by his first marriage, he had the severe affliction of losing his wife, March 14, 1808.

In 1810 he built what was known as the "Buckingham Store & Warehouse" on Muskingum Avenue, just south of the present Sixth Street bridge, which was torn down in 1880.

On the 6th of April, 1816, he took into partnership with him his brother, Alvah, and his brother-in-law, Solomon Sturges (brother of his second wife). That partnership was a prominent factor in the business of south-eastern Ohio, and continued until it was dissolved by Mr. Buckingham's sudden death in 1832.

He was married to his third wife, Eunice Hale, August 15, 1816.

As the best means of conveyance, the wedding party, consisting of Mr. Buckingham, his bride, and her sister, Anna, returned to Ohio over the Allegheny mountains on horseback. Soon after settling in Springfield—now a part of Zanesville—Mr. Buckingham began to exercise an important influence in the community and, by his sound judgment and excellent business habits, did much to promote public interests, both in his neighborhood and the State. He represented his district several times in the State Senate, and was one of the first and most influential in promoting the enterprise of building the Ohio Canal. As one of the Commissioners of the Canal Fund of Ohio, an office he held at the time of his death, he evinced a sagacity and fidelity which would have done credit to the ablest financiers. As far as his duty required, he attended in person along the line of the canal.

The favorable terms on which the—for that time—extensive loans of the State of Ohio were made, the facilities for the various financial operations of the state which were secured by the Commissioners, were practically the results of Mr. Buckingham's experience, talents and character combined. In 1825, in connection with the other Commissioners, Gov. Allen Trimble and Mr. Joseph Perkins, they negotiated, in New York City, a loan of the youthful state bearing 5 per cent. interest at 97½, and secured from the Manhattan Co. Bank, which they made fiscal agents of the State of Ohio, interest on funds in its hands—a concession which the bank had not made to the State of New York, for which it was also the fiscal agent. Among the results of his public spirit and sound judgment, were the building of the two bridges, which, prior to his death, crossed the Muskingum and Pataskala rivers at Zanesville. At the building of one of these, he unfortunately lost his life, August 21, 1832, by the giving away, during a flood, of the temporary supports, upon which it rested during its construction.

Mr. Buckingham early embraced the religion of Jesus Christ and, for more than twenty years, was a consistent and exemplary member of the Presbyterian Church, at Zanesville. In this, as in other things, he was thorough. Not content with being a christian in name, he practiced the duties which his religion inculcated, and exerted a decided christian influence on all occasions when such influence was required. His sound principles of business, stern adherence to the right, honesty above suspicion, gained for him the confidence of the public; while his kind heart and generous hand won for him the love of his personal and intimate acquaintance. In person he was commanding, his head massive, his dark eye clear and searching.

Many of the results of his efforts during the early years of the State of Ohio, will remain long after his name shall have passed from the memory of its inhabitants.

Mrs. Eunice Buckingham deserves here, a most honored place. She was born in Glastonbury, Ct., October 22, 1792, and, in August, 1816, newly married, with her husband and sister, crossed the Allegheny Mountains on horseback, there being then no roads for carriages or wagons. Suddenly widowed, in 1832, by a dreadful casualty, she met the shock with christian fortitude and submission, and brought to her new position and increased responsibilities, an unwavering purpose and a conscientious fidelity worthy of all praise. As the sole head of her family, she ruled her household well, though her children were held by a silken thread. She was dignified, yet unassuming, generous, yet unostentatious; her piety gradually maturing to the end, and bringing, not merely a peaceful, but triumphant death. In her christian life, she used her ample means with true christian liberality, to relieve the poor, to sustain the institutions of religion at home and abroad; laying this community and the various benevolent societies of the land under lasting obligations by her munificent donations and bequests.

Besides paying one-half the expenses of rearing the Putnam Seminary building at Zanesville, Ohio, she left $10,000 for its endowment, the interest of which is to be appropriated for purposes of female education perpetually, under the direction of her daughters and their successors; $1,000, the interest of which should contribute to the pastor's support, till his salary reached $800; $1,500 toward the erection of the Manse; $1,000 to the American Bible Society; $1,000 to the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions; $1,000 to the American Home Missionary Society; $1,000 for the cause of Emancipation; and $500 to the American Tract Society.

She died, February 28, 1843.

SIXTH (1490) GENERATION.

SARAH BUCKINGHAM, born Feb. 4, 1780 at Nine Partners, N. Y., daughter of Ebenezer Buckingham (born Nov. 1, 1748, at Greenfield, Ct.), and Esther (Bradley) Buckingham (born Feb. 28, 1754, at Greenfield, Ct.), was married December 25, 1799, in Otsego County, N. Y., to Benjamin Sprague, who was born April 3, 1778, in Rhode Island.

She spent the first twelve years of her life with her grandmother, Elisabeth Buckingham. After her marriage she lived in Cooperstown until August, 1802, when they moved to the Far West as Buffalo was then called. From there they went up the lake by land very near where the road runs as far as North East, through an entire wilderness. There being no house in which to lodge, they slept in the wood, having only one child. They lived here three years, until the land was surveyed, when they came back to the town of Pomfret. They were at her father's in Athens County, Ohio, in 1807, and at Zanesville in 1809, but returned to the State of New York before Joseph, their fifth child, was born, and spent their remaining days in Chautauqua County. She died from a stroke of palsy, having been sick but seven days, May 22, 1852, aged 72 years. He died of pleurisy January 3, 1858, aged 79 years. The obituary notice reads "Died in this town Mr. Benjamin

Sprague, in the 80th year of his age. Mr. Sprague was one of the earliest settlers of this county, having emigrated from Cooperstown, Otsego County, to what is now the town of Sheridan, about the year 1805, and bought a tract of 200 acres of land there. After residing a number of years on his original purchase he removed to this town, and occupied different places until he finally, in 1827, settled on the place where he died. He was a carpenter and joiner, and also cultivated a farm. He was an industrious upright man, and a useful member of society.’’

SIXTH (1492) GENERATION.

BRADLEY BUCKINGHAM, born June 9, 1784, in Ballston, N. Y., son of Ebenezer Buckingham (born Nov. 1, 1748, in Greenfield, Ct.), and Esther (Bradley) Buckingham (born Feb. 28, 1754, in Greenfield, Ct.); was twice married: 1st, August 15, 1809, in Miami County, Ohio, to Maria Darlington, who was born January 5, 1790, in Virginia, daughter of John and Mary Darlington. She died March 23 1831, in Newark, Ohio, leaving eleven children.

2d. In 1835 to Eveline Wilson, who was born in London, Ohio, November, 31, 1814. She died in Newark, Ohio, June 2, 1842.

Mr. Bradley Buckingham died February 7, 1850, in Newark, Ohio, and was interred there by the side of his wives.

Mr. Buckingham removed from New York state to Ohio, with his parents in 1799. At about the age of 19, he commenced life as a surveyor and in pursuing that business walked over the most of the states of Ohio and Indiana. The Indians were constantly near his party, and he made many friends among them by his courage in the hunt; at one time when far away from any cabin, or white men, he was bitten by a deadly snake; it was the work of an instant to open his penknife and cut the flesh so deep as to put him out of danger. He never lost his pleasure in the hunt, and his grandchildren took great delight in hearing the older uncles tell of the times when their father came home with a deer across his saddle, and wild turkey hanging from the pommel. These hunts were his recreation when needing rest from the active business of life. Later in life, as a merchant, farmer, and joint owner of a mill, he amassed a fortune and became one of the chief men of the place. He was public-spirited, and foremost in works of charity, and a liberal supporter of the Presbyterian church during his entire life; was one of the largest contributors to the building of the First Presbyterian church of Newark, Ohio. His children remember him as a kind and indulgent father, whose maxim was: "If you can say nothing good of a person, say nothing at all." His ready sympathy, and unflinching kindness made him universally respected and loved.

Maria (Darlington) Buckingham was a woman of great force of character, a devout Christian, who trained her children with untiring zeal in the principles of the Christian religion, and doctrines of the Presbyterian church, of which she was a member from her early youth. She had perfect faith in the efficacy of the Catechism and Watt's hymns, and fixed them in the minds of her children, saying they were the best legacy she could leave them.

Being possessed of a more than ordinary executive talent, she was of great assistance to her husband, and controlled her large family with a firmness that made them helpful as children, and laid the foundation for all that was best in their after lives. Of fine personal appearance and gracious deportment, a lover of the beautiful, she took an active part in the social life of the town. A friend to whom the poor turned for sympathy and health; her name and presence were ready for every good work.

SIXTH (1493) GENERATION.

MILTON BUCKINGHAM, born October 23, 1786, in Ballston, N. Y., son of Ebenezer Buckingham (born Nov. 1, 1748, in Greenfield, Ct.), and Esther (Bradley) Buckingham (born Feb. 28, 1754, in Greenfield, Ct.); married January 1, 1812, in Carthage Township, Athens Co., Ohio, to Belinda Cooley, who was born June 2, 1792, in New Canaan, Fairfield Co., Ct., and died April 4, 1872, and buried in Springfield, Ohio. Her sister, Esther Cooley, married her brother-in-law, Stephen Buckingham.

Milton came with his parents to Ohio in 1800, whom he followed in their wanderings to Carthage Township, Athens County, where he lived until 1832. With him his father lived until his death in October, 1824, leaving him his farm. In the fall of 1832, or soon after, he went with his family to Zanesville, Ohio, where he resided several years, when he moved to Springfield, Ohio, with his youngest children. While living in Zanesville he engaged in merchandising, in company with his brother Alva, Solomon Sturges, and Hezekiah Sturges, under the name of A. Buckingham & Co. At Springfield he engaged in merchandising with a Mr. Hatch, about one year, and then with his sons, John and Milton, for several years, and died there October 17, 1852.

He was nearly all his life an exemplary Christian and member of the Methodist church, and frequently a class leader among them. He possessed, in a peculiar degree, the milk of human kindness, and was ever ready to forgive injuries. He died universally beloved and lamented, expressing with joy his delight in going to dwell with his Redeemer.

Both are interred in Ferncliff Cemetery, Springfield, Ohio.

ALVAH BUCKINGHAM, born March 20, 1791, at Ballston, N. Y., son of Ebenezer Buckingham (born November 1, 1748, at Greenfield, Ct.), and Esther (Bradley) Buckingham, (born Feb. 28, 1754, at Greenfield, Ct.) Married Oct. 3, 1819, at Glastonbury, Ct., to Anna Hale who was born March 9, 1795, the sixth child of Benjamin Hale, (who was born October 30, 1759, and died December 24, 1831), and Martha Welles, his wife (who was born Aug. 12, 1759, and died April 20, 1837).

Mrs. Anna Buckingham died on Monday, September 23, 1867, at 13 East 12th Street, New York City.

Mr. Alvah Buckingham died October 4, 1867, in Putnam, Ohio, and both are interred in Woodlawn Cemetery, Putnam (now Zanesville), Ohio.

In 1794 his parents removed to Cooperstown, N. Y. In 1796 his elder brother, Ebenezer, left home to see the wilds west of the Allegheny Mountains and Ohio River, followed in the spring of 1799 by Stephen. In the fall of 1799 they returned with such glowing accounts of this new land that their parents, with their numerous children, except three married daughters, left Cooperstown for the Western Wilderness. They located at first at the mouth of Killbuck Creek. This was almost the first settlement made in that region, and was some miles above the present town of Coshocton. The nearest white settlement was Zanesville, some thirty miles south, on the Muskingum River.

While the elder members of the family traded with the Indians for furs, robes, etc., the younger ones joined in their sports and learned their strange language. And this was never entirely forgotten, as fifty years later, counting in the Indian tongue was a source of great entertainment to a delighted circle of little auditors. Their amusements were: "throwing the tomahawk," "shooting with bow and arrow," "tossing up wood chips for old Indians to fire at,"—in which they were very expert, and other athletic sports.

In the fall of 1802, finding this location unhealthy, the family removed to Carthage Township, in the south-eastern part of Athens Co., Ohio, on the Hockhocking River. Here, the subject of this article, Alvah Buckingham, had the inestimable privilege of attending school. Though it was four miles distant from his home to the school-house he walked thereto daily. Out of school, he assisted on the farm or indulged in hunting. This latter was his favorite pastime, as at that early date game was plenty. The woods were infested with the bear, deer, panther, raccoon, opossum and wild turkey. Near the farm was quite a celebrated deer lick, where, on moonlight nights he was accustomed to station his watch, and many a victim rewarded his unerring rifle. It was in one of these lonely watches that his quickness of thought and rapidity of action saved his life, and brought down a huge panther, poised just above him, and ready for the spring.

Thus at the age of seventeen he met with a severe accident. Hunting in the woods one day, his horse became frightened, reared and fell back on his rider. Stunned by the fall, he yet recovered to find his right leg broken both above and below the knee, himself distant from the nearest house, which was his own home, over three miles away, and no aid for his rescue but his own mother wit. With a courageous spirit, and by dint of crawling on his two hands and one knee, he reached the river, which fortunately was low enough to enable him to cross, holding his mouth just above the water, and thus reached home just as his sinking strength gave way. The limb was splintered as best as could be in a country home, but a long weary year's confinement was the result, and ever after a slight, though not perceptible, lameness.

In 1804 the older brother, Ebenezer Buckingham, moved to Putnam (now the Ninth Ward of Zanesville), Ohio, and to assist him in business Alvah followed in 1810, leaving his parents still at the Hocking Farm. In 1813, Stephen, an older brother died, and Alvah was called upon to take charge of his business, which he did for two years. In April, 1816, Solomon Sturges and himself (they afterwards married sisters,—the Misses Hale of Glastonbury, Ct.),—formed a mercantile partnership, one-fourth each with his elder brother Ebenezer Buckingham, under the firm name of E. Buckingham & Co., a firm widely known in their then pioneer life. Ebenezer married Eunice Hale of Glastonbury, Ct., and returning to the west brought his sister-in-law, Anna, the whole party crossing the Allegheny Mountains on horseback, as at that time there were no roads for carriages or wagons. In 1818, Anna Hale, returned to her eastern home, but as it proved for only a time. As leader of the village choir she sat in her accustomed place, on the last Sunday of September, 1819, in the old church at Glastonbury. Glancing below, her eye met the well known figure of her western friend. An interview—a hurried proposal and a hurried marriage on the following Sabbath evening, left our young couple free to start on their homeward westward route, and on horseback again, as in her previous trip, the wife of Alvah Buckingham was escorted to her pioneer home. Returning to Putnam they purchased on the banks of the Muskingum river a very modest homestead of one room: and there in 1820, set up their household gods. In 1821 they built a two story brick house, to which they subsequently added, in 1834, a more commodious addition. This was and is the old homestead, in which all their children were born, and now in 1892, occupied by their youngest son, James Buckingham.

In October, 1824, Ebenezer Buckingham, Sr., the father of Alvah, died at the old farm house in Carthage Township, Athens County, Ohio, and his wife, Esther, then removed to the home of her son Ebenezer, Jr., in Putnam, where she died June 25, 1827. In August, 1832, the firm of E. Buckingham Jr. & Co., was dissolved by the sudden and painful death of Ebenezer Buckingham; but the business was continued under the new name of "A. Buckingham & Company." and the following year another brother, Milton, was induced to give up the old farm at Carthage and join the firm, taking one-half of Alvah's share; while at the same time Solomon Sturges, Alvah's partner, persuaded his brother Hezekiah, to remove from Fairfield, Ct., and share in his share.

At this time there was a great need felt of good schools, and in 1825 a charter for a seminary was secured, to be called the "Putnam Classical Institute" (now Putnam Female Seminary), to be located at Putnam. Mrs. Eunice Buckingham, wife of Ebenezer, Alvah Buckingham, Solomon Sturges, Julius C. Guthrie and Austin A. Guthrie, furnished the funds, and the seminary was established which, through all its vicissitudes of time, still continues worthy of patronage.

In 1843, Milton Buckingham removed to Springfield, Ohio, and Alvah could thus admit his oldest son, Benjamin, to a partnership; in 1845 the firm name "A. Buckingham & Company," was dissolved, and a new firm name "Buckingham & Sturges" established, composed of Benjamin H. Buckingham and William Sturges, the two oldest sons of the two former partners. In 1850, R. P. Burlingame, a friend, was sent up to Chicago, Ill., to open up a lumber trade there, the funds being furnished by Alvah Buckingham. The next year the two built the first grain elevator in the city of Chicago. It was built of wood, holding some 75,000 bushels of grain, at that time a great wonder. It was called the Fulton Elevator. In 1851 Alvah Buckingham established branch houses in New York City, and Toledo, Ohio, for his two oldest sons, Benjamin and Philo, buying the Pendleton Elevator, the first one built in Toledo. They soon built a second elevator, and here in the press and excitement of a too extended business, Philo, the second son, lost his health, and died quite suddenly, April 6, 1853, in the homestead at Putnam.

In 1854 Alvah Buckingham sold a third interest in his Chicago Fulton Elevator to his old partner, Solomon Sturges, and shortly after they concluded a contract with the Illinois Central Railroad to do all their grain warehousing business for ten years. In 1856 they built and opened the two large warehouses called "A" and "B" in the city of Chicago, holding each some 700,000 bushels of grain—the marvels of the day. After this date, of 1855, Alvah Buckingham spent most of his time at Chicago, and three years later removed his family there.

In April, 1865, Mr. Alvah Buckingham removed to New York City, where he purchased a home, and with his daughters resided at No. 13 East 12th St. until his death. His daughter Julia A. had married the Hon. Samuel S. Cox, of Ohio, and the other daughter, Elizabeth, had married John A. Hardenbergh, of New York.

In the spring of 1866, having occasion to locate some lands in the West, Alvah Buckingham took his youngest son, James, as a companion and traveled through Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Kansas, and though much of this was accomplished in a spring wagon over rough roads, and at the age of seventy-five, it was without any apparent fatigue.

In the spring of 1867, he made a second pilgrimage to the West, this time traveling through Iowa and Nebraska, and passing over the line of the Pacific Railroad as far as it was then finished. He was ambitious to be on the first train through to the Pacific ocean;—but this anticipation was not to be realized.

The summer of 1867 was spent with his family and two daughters Mrs. Cox and Mrs. Hardenbergh, at Saratoga, ending in a most pleasurable trip to the White Mountains. Returning to his New York home his wife was taken sick with pneumonia, and died September 23, 1867, and her remains were taken to their first home, Putnam, Ohio. In a week Mr. Buckingham was stricken down, and eleven days after his remains reposed by the side of his wife, in Woodlawn Cemetery, Putnam (now part of Zanesville), Ohio. He died October 4, 1867.

Mr. Alvah Buckingham was especially distinguished by those who knew his habit and mind; 1st, as a conscientious Christian man; 2nd, as a man of unflinching courtesy of demeanor; 3rd, as a just business-like, economic, yet speculative merchant; 4th, as possessing a rare genius for construction of bridges, elevators, houses, etc.; 5th, as a just citizen, who would prefer a sacrifice of his personal interest rather than the least injustice to any one, or to the government; 6th, as a most affectionate husband and indulgent father. For over half a century in the region of Ohio where he lived, he was universally regarded as an honest man, above all reproach.

“Mrs. Anna Buckingham was a fine example of conscientious fidelity in all the duties and relations of life. The heart of her husband trusted in her, and her prudence and skill, with her habits of industry and economy, relieved him of all anxiety. Her children rise up and call her blessed. Her connections and friends, all ‘praise her in the gates.’ Her genuine kindness taught all to love her, and her uniform consistency and good judgment and sterling worth, won for her the respect and confidence which true ingenuousness inspires. Her sympathy opened wide her doors and heart to those kindred whose youth Providence had rendered in a measure homeless. She was a warm and constant friend of the poor, and to the houses of the sick and suffering she came as an angel of mercy. In such places ‘Aunt Ann’ was more than welcome, and to few will the Saviour more freely give, as few will more truly deserve, the need and proof of discipleship—‘I was sick, and ye visited and ministered to me,’ than to Mrs. Buckingham. Where duty called she went cheerfully, trustfully, and when afflictions fell with crushing weight, she bowed in meek submission to the behest of him who ‘doeth all things well.’ These dispensations, with the grace of God, mellowed and enriched her character, made her less self-reliant and more reliant on God. Her piety was not a mere Sabbath dress, but the daily dress of the soul, uniform, consistent, and beautiful. She believed in the efficacy of prayer, and by her presence and co-operation helped sustain the female prayer-meeting while with us.’

SIXTH (1498) GENERATION.

PAMELIA BUCKINGHAM, born August 20, 1798, in Cooperstown, N. Y., youngest child of Ebenezer Buckingham (born November 1, 1748, at Greenfield, Ct.), and Esther (Bradley) Buckingham (born Feb. 28, 1754, at Greenfield, Ct.); married Julius Chappell Guthrie, September 23, 1817, in Zanesville, Ohio. Mr. Guthrie was born in the fort opposite the mouth of the Little Kanawha River on the north bank of the Ohio River, April 26, 1792, son of Stephen and Sally (Chappell) Guthrie, and is said to have been the first white male child born in that part of the territory.

For a time he worked for Joseph B. Miles (No 1494) who was a merchant at Athens, Ohio. There he met Pamela Buckingham, who was visiting her sister, Mrs. Elisabeth Buckingham Miles.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Guthrie lived and died in Zanesville, Ohio, on the same lot,—corner of Adams St. and Muskingum Ave.—which was pleasantly situated on the banks of the Muskingum River. Being possessed of a warm heart and sympathizing nature, he had many friends. He was always a strong whig in politics, a warm admirer of Henry Clay, and by his honorable dealings did a large and extensive mercantile business.

His death occurred July 25, 1849, after a short illness.

His wife survived him many years, to be a comfort and solace to her children, who were devotedly attached to her, and every New Year's day came from far and near to see her and rejoice together. She was a woman of remarkable sweetness of disposition, and always considerate of others. "She openeth her mouth with wisdom, and in her tongue was the law of kindness." "She looked well to the ways of her household," and "her children rise up and call her blessed." Her home was the school of human virtue, and its responsibilities, joys, sorrows, smiles, tears, hopes and solitudes, were the chief interest of her life. None knew her but to love her, and her last words were, "Where shall we look but unto thee, oh, Lord."

Her pastor, Rev. Dr. Kingsbury, of whose flock she had been five and twenty years a member, paid fitting tribute to her altogether lovely disposition when he said: "Her husband was her glory, home her empire, and her children her jewels."

She died March 14, 1863, by debility from long suffering with asthma, in the house where all her children were born and reared.

Both are interred in Woodlawn Cemetery, Zanesville, Ohio.

WALTER BRADLEY CUSHING, born June 23, 1796, at Paris, N. Y., son of Judge Zattu and Rachel (Buckingham) Cushing: married February 24, 1820, in Fredonia, N. Y., to Eloisa Ransom, who was born Nov. 28, 1797, in Buffalo, N. Y., daughter of Amasa Ransom, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. W. B. Cushing died October 6, 1856, in Brookfield, Wis., and Mrs. Eloisa Cushing died March 28, 1888, in Brookfield, Wis., and both are interred in Wauwatosa, Wis.

Mr. W. B. Cushing's early life was spent in Fredonia, N. Y.; there he learned the hardships of early settlers in a new country. Was educated in the Fredonia Academy; for some years followed the mercantile business. In May, 1840, moved to Delafield, Wis. April 20, 1842, removed to Brookfield, Waukesha Co., Wis., where he spent the last years of his life.

He was a man of sterling qualities, and in advance of many of Wisconsin settlers in business ability and strong convictions of right, — one of the men whose influence lives after them.

LYDIA C. CUSHING, born March 14, 1798, at Paris, N. Y., daughter of Zattu and Rachel (Buckingham) Cushing; was twice married: 1st., May 16, 1813, to Judge Daniel Sterne Houghton, who was born in Balton, Mass. She went South with him and he died in Vicksburg, Miss., in June, 1825, aged 36 years.

2d. August 24, 1826, to Dr. Squire White, of Fredonia, N. Y. He was born Nov. 20, 1785, in Vermont. They lived, died, and were buried in Fredonia.

Dr. White was the first licensed physician in the county, and did a great deal of charitable work among the first settlers, who were poor, and he found in Mrs. White a cheerful co-worker in all kindly acts and generous deeds. He died April 2, 1857.

Mrs. White resided with Mrs. Quetting some years, and with her took a trip to Europe, which she enjoyed as only one of her bright intellect and intelligence could enjoy it. For the last four or five years her home was with her son, George H. White, on Water St., Fredonia, N. Y., where she had the tenderest care and was served by Mrs. White with all the devotion of an own daughter. Her Bible was her hand book, and her prayers had the impressive beauty of the most carefully written litany. She had all the Cushing determination and force of character; there was no emergency or combination of discouraging circumstances in which her heart ever failed her, and yet she had that sunny disposition and tender love which would not wound the feelings of any person, white or black, bond or free. She could even chide and rebuke in a way to leave no pain or resentment. As for the appeals of the poor and distressed, they were to her like drafts through a bank,—to be honored at sight. For fifty-five years she was a communicant in the Presbyterian church.

She died January 2, 1886, aged 87 years.

SEVENTH (1822) GENERATION.

MILTON BUCKINGHAM CUSHING, born July 20, 1800, at Paris, N. Y., son of Zattu and Rachel (Buckingham) Cushing; was twice married: 1st, November 25, 1823, in Zanesville, Ohio, by Rev. James Culbertson, to Abigail Browning Tupper. She died November 21, 1833. 2d, June 12, 1836, at Columbus, Ohio, to Mary Barker Smith of Salem, Mass., who was born September 24, 1807, at Salem, Mass.

Dr. Cushing graduated from Hamilton College, Utica, N. Y., also in the medical profession; finding his practice too arduous, he embarked in a mercantile career, but resumed his practice again at Chicago, Ill., before his death. He was for many years a merchant in Zanesville, Ohio, and was also much engaged in the cause of education.

Dr. Cushing was traveling for his health, when he died, April 22, 1847, at Gallipolis, Ohio.

Mrs. Mary B. Cushing was a woman of great intellectual gifts and moral traits of character. The last few years of her life many honors came to her for her devotion to her country, and the heroic sacrifices she had made. She died at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. E. H. Bouton, St. Joseph, Mo., March 26, 1891.

REV. GOODSSELL BUCKINGHAM, born July 14, 1810, in Carthage Township, Athens Co., Ohio, son of Stephen and Esther (Cooley) Buckingham; married September 1, 1831, in Zanesville, Ohio, to Eliza Thompson, who was born June 15, 1809, in Zanesville, Ohio.

Rev. Buckingham died December 15, 1885, at Washington, D. C., and was interred in Woodlawn Cemetery, Zanesville, Ohio. Mrs. Eliza T. Buckingham now (1892) resides in St. Louis, Mo.

Early left fatherless, Rev. Goodsell Buckingham was taught by his widowed mother lessons of benevolence and sympathy for the poor and oppressed which influenced his entire life. In his early manhood he was outspoken and earnest in his denunciation of all oppression and wrong and took a very prominent part in the anti-slavery and temperance movements. In his autobiography he writes: "For some years I had appointments on Sundays either to preach or form temperance or anti-slavery societies. My heart was inclined to the work of the ministry and I held it steadily in view till 1838."

In 1839 he joined the Pittsburg Conference, the session of which that year was most important. A report of his anti-slavery lectures was made and he was enjoined to desist or be subjected to the discipline of the Conference. The Rev. L. C. Matlock, D.D., in a volume entitled "The Anti-slavery Struggle and Triumph in the Methodist Episcopal Church," says:

"The case of Goodsell Buckingham was then taken up, a probationer of one year's standing, who had delivered lectures against slavery. His presiding elder and colleague represented him to be 'deeply pious, habitually serious, greatly devoted to his work, possessing far more than ordinary talent and education, and exceedingly anxious to continue and give himself wholly to God and his work.' His address to the Conference, says the venerable Robert Boyd, was marked by great self-possession and a truly amiable manner. Such was the ability manifested on this occasion that his warmest opponents admitted that he was no ordinary man. But he was firm to his purpose, and refused to pledge himself wholly to refrain from the agitating subject and was dropped from the traveling ministry by a vote of 49 to 29. He took his place among the laymen of the Church, a monument of personal integrity, and a constant memorial of mistaken Church policy, seen and lamented when too late for correction in his case."

He was several times nominated by the anti-slavery party for the offices of Lieutenant Governor, Congressman, and other positions in the State of Ohio.

A man of unswerving loyalty to the church of his choice, of zeal in the cause of humanity and integrity and uprightness as merchant, and citizen, he writes in his closing days, "As I near the home of the dead, I devoutly pray with growing earnestness that when life with its labors is over, husband and wife and every child, and the dear friends I have loved so much on earth may be among the happy number who meet their Lord in the air and so be with Him through all eternity."

At his request he was buried and now sleeps in Woodlawn Cemetery, Zanesville, Ohio.

SEVENTH (1833) GENERATION.

GEN. CATHARINUS PUTNAM BUCKINGHAM, born March 14, 1808, in Zanesville, Ohio, son of Ebenezer and Catherine (Putnam) Buckingham; was married three times: 1st, July 5, 1830, to Mary Gird of Cedar Lake, N. Y., who was born Dec. 5, 1809, in New York City. She died July 11, 1834, at Mt. Vernon, Ohio. 2d, August 24, 1835, to Mary Pank Turner, of England, born March 31, 1818, died August 24, 1844, at Mt. Vernon, Ohio. 3d, August 26, 1845, to Marion A. Hawkes, of South Hadley, Mass., born October 15, 1820, at Peru, Mass.

Gen. Buckingham died August 30, 1888, in Chicago, Ill., and was interred by the side of his deceased wives in Woodlawn Cemetery, Zanesville, Ohio.

Gen. C. P. Buckingham was sent, when fourteen years of age, to the Ohio University at Athens, where he remained until he had passed nearly through his sophomore year. In the spring of 1825, at the age of seventeen years, he received the appointment of cadet in the United States Military Academy at West Point, from President Monroe, through the kind offices of his father's friend, Governor Ethan A. Brown, then United States Senator from Ohio. In June of that year he reported at West Point for duty, and after examination was admitted, with about one hundred and twenty others, on probation, to the fourth, or lowest class, there known as "Plebes." Having a natural taste for mathematics, he at once took a high position in a class containing such names as Charles Mason, Robert E. Lee, Ormsby M. Mitchell, Thomas A. Davies, Thomas Swords, Joseph E. Johnston, William Hoffman, Benjamin W. Brice, Albemarle Cady, and others, who became general officers during the war of the Rebellion. At the January examination he was not only fully admitted to the institution, but was with three others—namely, Mason, Harford and Lee—placed at the head of the class in mathematics, the four being made equal in merit. At the end of the first year an extraordinary thing occurred. It had been customary to select from the most distinguished members of the first (or senior) class, three or four as assistant professors, to teach the lower sections of the fourth (or freshman) class. This year, instead of taking the assistant professors from the first class, at the head of which was cadet Sibley; or from the second class, at the head of which was cadet Church (afterwards Professor of Mathematics at the Military Academy), they were taken from the third class, and cadets Mason, Harford, Lee and Buckingham were appointed to those positions, they having been but one year at the academy, and the latter being but eighteen years old. These positions they held for two succeeding years, or until they entered in the last year of their course of studies. At the end of four years cadet Buckingham was graduated, and appointed second lieutenant of artillery, and was granted a furlough of two months, with orders to report at the end of it for duty at Fort Independence, in Boston harbor. Long before the expiration of his furlough, he was requested to give it up and join a surveying party on Green River, Ky., with a view to the artificial navigation of that river. At the end of the survey he reported at Washington, and spent the winter in making maps of his work. The next summer, after a furlough of two months, he was appointed assistant professor of natural and experimental philosophy at the Military Academy, where he spent the succeeding year; at the end of which he resigned his position in the army, and repaired with his little family to Putnam, Ohio, the place of his nativity, intending to devote himself to the business of his father. Soon after he arrived in Putnam, it was discovered that the upper one of the two bridges that spanned the Muskingum River was in a dangerous condition, and must be rebuilt. Having some knowledge of engineering, Lieutenant Buckingham was employed by the directors of the Bridge Company to plan and construct a new one. His father, being the President of the Bridge Company, also devoted his time to superintending the work and employing the men, as all the work was done by the day. As the bridge approached completion, the lieutenant resumed his former plan of business, and left his father to complete the work on the bridge. Just at this time a great rise in the river caused the unfinished bridge to fall, with a large number of men, among whom was his father, into the raging waters, and he and one other were struck and killed by the falling timbers. This dreadful occurrence broke up all the lieutenant's plans, and for a year he was undecided what to do. In the summer of 1833, he was appointed, without any solicitation on his part, to the chair of mathematics and natural philosophy in Kenyon College. This college is located in the village of Gambier, a short distance from Mt. Vernon, and not finding a convenient residence there, he removed with his family to the latter place, where he purchased property and made his permanent residence. He retained his position in the college for three years, and on his resignation was elected one of the trustees of the institution. He then established a private school for boys which continued for about two years, and was then given up for the purpose of going into mercantile business. This continued until the summer of 1843, when it was closed up, and in the summer of 1844, he with his sister made a voyage to Europe. Their travels were confined to England, Ireland and France, being cut short by distressing news from home, which caused their immediate return. They embarked at Liverpool on the 5th of November, in the steamship Britannia, and, after a stormy voyage, arrived in Boston on the 22nd of November, having been out seventeen days. His wife and one son having died during his absence, he, with the rest of his children, spent the next summer in his native town of Putnam. During this summer the other bridge over the Muskingum was burned down, and Prof. Buckingham was employed to rebuild it, on the same plan as that on which he had built the other one, thirteen years before. This occupied the summer, and at the end of it he accepted the position of principal of the Putnam Female Seminary, which he retained for one year. The next spring he returned to Mt. Vernon, and, after a few months, being averse to a life of idleness, he for the sake of employment purchased a drug-store, to which he soon afterwards added dry goods and groceries. In 1849, he embarked in a business that was especially suited to his tastes and talents, and in which he continued for a number of years. This business was the manufacture of machinery, for which purpose he established a plant in Mt. Vernon, to which he gave the name of the "Kokosing Iron Works." While thus engaged, he was invited to take an interest in the elevator business in Chicago in company with his uncles, Alvah Buckingham and Solomon Sturges, without, however, entirely dissolving his connection with the Mt. Vernon enterprise. On arriving at Chicago he found one elevator belonging to his uncles partly finished; he completed that, and then, at the demand of the Illinois Central Railroad Company, built another, each of the two holding about one million bushels of grain. In 1857 he sold his interest in the elevators and returned to the Kokosing Iron Works, at Mt. Vernon, Ohio, giving his entire attention to that business until the spring of 1861. On the breaking out of the war of the Rebellion, he was appointed by Governor Dennison, assistant adjutant-general of the State; but within two weeks after arriving at Columbus he was requested to take the position of commissary-general, which he accepted, and retained until the 1st of July, when he was appointed adjutant-general of the State, in place of General Carrington, appointed colonel in the regular army. This position he occupied until the next April, and during that time organized and sent into the field about seventy thousand Ohio volunteers for the army. In April he received, unsolicited, the appointment of brigadier-general of volunteers, and was ordered on duty at the War Department as the confidential aid of the Secretary of War. This position he retained about a year, during which he was employed on several important special matters. For instance, in July, he accompanied Secretary Seward to meet the governors of the several States, to devise the best method of raising more troops, and was authorized at his discretion, to issue such orders from the War Department as might be necessary, to proceed to Columbus, Ohio, Indianapolis, Ind., and Rock Island, Ill., to locate at these places the arsenals that had just been ordered by Congress to be established. His report was adopted entire, and the arsenals established in accordance with it. In the fall of that year, when it was determined to relieve General McClellan from the command of the Army of the Potomac and place it under the command of General Burnside, he was ordered to proceed to the army, then on the march, and perform that delicate duty. When not otherwise engaged, he received and digested the daily reports from the different departments of the War Office, with authority to act, in the name of the Secretary, on all but the most important matters, such as he was not willing to take the responsibility of deciding; these he was to submit to the Secretary himself. In February, he was sent for by the Senate Military Committee to consult with them on the subject of a conscription law. After discussing the subject several hours, he was requested by the committee to draw up a bill in conformity with the views he had expressed, which he did, and which was passed into a law, with scarcely an alteration. About this time his private affairs demanded his attention imperatively, and he resigned his commission in the army. During the next two years he was engaged in the elevator business in Brooklyn, N. Y., and after that was interested in the lumber business in Florida for a short time. In 1865, he removed to Irvington-on-the-Hudson and in 1868, to Chicago, to assist his brothers in managing the elevators that he had built ten years before. In 1873, he united with his brothers in establishing the Chicago Steel Works, an institution of which he became president; and to its management for ten years, he with three of his sons gave their entire attention. Being possessed of a handsome competency, he might be supposed, at the age of seventy-eight years, to be fairly entitled to the privilege of retiring from business, but having no taste for an idle life, he preferred the excitement and, to him, the enjoyment of managing a business that was the object of his interest and pride from its inception. Although during his eventful life he filled several offices of responsibility and trust, yet in every case the office sought him, without an effort on his part to influence the selection, the appointment being, in most cases, absolutely unexpected. In religious matters Gen. Buckingham occupied no uncertain position. For fifty years he was a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church. Gen. Buckingham found time amid the numerous calls of business to indulge his taste for his favorite study, mathematics. Some years ago he wrote a work on the "Principles of Arithmetic," which was very highly complimented by professors and others. Some years later he wrote a work on the highest branch of mathematics, viz.: "The Differential or Infinitesimal Calculus." In this work he combatted the false and absurd theories that are contained in the text-books generally used in the universities, and advocated a theory that was at once acknowledged, by all who understood it, to be the true one, being founded on the fundamental idea of Fluxions, invented by Sir Isaac Newton, and set forth in his "Principia." This work has been readily adopted in the present method of treating this abstruse and difficult science.

He died at his residence, 669 Fullerton Ave., Chicago, Ill., August 30, 1888.

SARAH STURGES BUCKINGHAM, born May 22, 1817, in Zanesville, Ohio, daughter of Ebenezer and Eunice (Hale) Buckingham; married July 13, 1837, at Zanesville, Ohio, to Rev. George Beecher, of East Hampton, L. I., who was born May 6, 1809, at ~~Litchfield, Conn.~~ ^{East Hampton, L. I.}, son of Lyman Beecher, D.D. (who was born in New Haven), and Roxanna (Foote) Beecher (who was born in Guilford, Ct.).

Rev. George Beecher was graduated at Yale College in the class of 1828, and at Yale Theological Seminary in the class of 1832. The same year he accompanied his father and sisters, Miss C. E. Beecher and Mrs. Harriet B. Stowe, to Cincinnati. He was ordained to the work of the ministry by the Cincinnati Presbytery, and installed pastor of the Presbyterian church at Batavia, Ohio. He was afterward called to the pastorate of the 2nd Presbyterian church at Rochester, N. Y., and subsequently to the church at Chillicothe, Ohio, where he died in the summer of 1843.

The circumstances of his death were deeply affecting. He was shooting birds on his cherry trees with a double-barreled shot-gun, had fired the charge in one barrel, and, while blowing into the empty barrel, the other was discharged, the charge entering his head, killing him instantly.

Mr. Beecher's consistent christian life and devotion to his Master's work made him universally esteemed in the community where he resided, as well as by his early associates in the college and seminary. His ardent temperament, combined with a vivid imagination and fine powers of description, made his conversation always interesting—often brilliant. His mind was well stored with choice passages from our English poets, not more so, however, than with the sweeter lines of the poets of the Bible. He had from early life cultivated a taste for music and the natural sciences. His knowledge of plants, minerals, shells and insects was minute and extensive. This was well for himself and his people, for, while these pursuits gave delicacy to his mind, and afforded variety and interest in his private life, he did not fail to discern and use for the glory of God the countless beautiful analogies with divine truth which such study reveals. Most impressive and fervid in manner, his sermons will not perish, being written on sanctified hearts to be known and read in Heaven.

Mrs. Beecher accompanied her husband to Rochester, N. Y., and afterwards to Chillicothe, Ohio. After his sudden death she removed to Zanesville, Ohio, and afterwards resided at Northampton, Mass., Andover, Mass., and New Haven, Conn., while her son was pursuing his academical, collegiate and theological courses. After a short time spent at Cincinnati, she removed to Hillsboro, Ohio, where she still resides with her son, Rev. George B. Beecher,—1892.

CATHARINE BUCKINGHAM, born April 19, 1819, in Zanesville, Ohio, daughter of Ebenezer and Eunice (Hale) Buckingham; married April 14, 1839, at Zanesville, Ohio, to Charles Cleveland Convers, who was born July 26, 1810, in Zanesville, Ohio, son of Daniel and Sarah (Munro) Convers.

Mr. C. C. Convers died September 20, 1860. Mrs. Catharine Convers died June 12, 1872, and both are interred in Woodlawn cemetery, Zanesville, Ohio.

Mr. Convers was the grandson of Benjamin Convers and Josiah Munro, both members of "The Ohio Company." After graduating at the Ohio University, he sought the larger educational advantages of the Law School of Harvard University. There he heard the lectures of Story and Greenleaf and enjoyed, besides that of his instructors, the society and friendship of such men as Benjamin R. Curtis and Charles Sumner, since famous; the one upon the bench and at the bar of the Supreme Court, and the other in the Senate of the United States as the champion of freedom and equal rights before the law. Breathing this stimulating atmosphere, an eager and diligent student, he profited largely by the environment, and laid a firm foundation for the practice of the law, which was to him ever a delight. The best testimony to his ability and character is the influence he exerted on the younger members of the profession. He was ever ready to assist them with kindly encouragement and advice in the embarrassments that beset their paths. In 1849 he represented Muskingum county in the State Senate, where, for two successive and stormy sessions, he was chosen presiding officer. In 1854 he was elected Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and in 1855 a Judge of the Supreme Court. Failing health prevented him from taking a seat on the bench of the latter tribunal, and shortly afterwards he resigned.

His portrait hangs in the Supreme Court room, where it was ordered to be placed in recognition of the character of the man and his learning.

In 1868 Mrs Catharine Convers removed with her family to New York City, and at the time of her death she was about to remove to her new home at Englewood, N. J., where her son and surviving daughters—1892—reside.

MARTHA HALE BUCKINGHAM, born November 25, 1820, in Zanesville, Ohio, daughter of Ebenezer and Eunice (Hale) Buckingham; married June 4, 1846, in Zanesville, Ohio, to William H. Trimble, of Hillsboro, Ohio, who was born October 22, 1811.

Col. Trimble died February 7, 1883, at Hillsboro, Ohio, aged 72. Mrs. Martha Trimble died October 23, 1890, at Hillsboro, Ohio, and both are interred there.

In 1846 she was married, in Putnam, to William H. Trimble, of Hillsboro, Ohio, where they ever after resided. A happy and united family grew up in the home which was beautified by her own taste, and the future was full of promise; but the successive deaths of children and husband, left her alone for the last seven years of her life, surrounded indeed by affectionate and sympathizing relations and friends, whose companionship was very dear to her; but, though her christian faith and fortitude stood out in clear relief against the sorrows and bereavements which pierced her tender heart, the absent ones were never forgotten.

Mrs. Trimble was a woman of remarkable character, and gifted with rare mental qualities which made her always an appreciative and interesting companion. Patriotic and loyal in an uncommon degree, she was interested in all public enterprises and gave her influence and help to every good work.

She never failed to respond to every appeal to her sympathies; and contributed freely and systematically to religious and charitable institutions, as well as to the individual poor, whose affairs she inquired into and to whom she gave wise counsel as well as material aid.

One who knew her long and well said, after her death: "For true charity which beareth all things, for real generosity, magnanimity, purity, fidelity to friendship, consistency to conjugal duty, maternal devotion, self-effacement and perfect unselfishness, she was unequaled,—the embodiment of christian graces."

In her beautiful home, "Woodland," which she entered as a happy young wife and mother, and when only one week before she had entertained, with such gracious hospitality, the wedding guests of a young niece, she closed her eyes on earth forever, and her lovely and loving spirit passed into the new life.

Mr. Trimble was educated chiefly at Miami University and read law with Samson Mason at Springfield, Ohio. While engaged in the practice of law, he yielded to the wishes of his Whig friends, and represented Highland County in the Legislature three terms,—1845, '46 and 47,—and was solicited in 1848 to become a candidate for the Senate in the strong Whig district composed of the counties of Fayette and Highland. This he declined, having previously built a comfortable home at Woodland, on a farm adjoining the town of Hillsboro, and concluded to devote himself exclusively to agricultural pursuits. When the War of the Rebellion was inaugurated, Col. Trimble was fifty years of age. An inherited military spirit and a deep sense of the importance of preserving the Union, induced him first to yield to the suggestion of Governor Dennison to raise a regiment for the defense of the border, at the time when it was uncertain what position Kentucky would take in the contest; and afterwards, at the request of his officers, to procure an order from the War Department and raise a regiment for one year of general service. As a citizen, neighbor and friend, his character is most fittingly described by one who knew him personally and well, Hon. J. J. Pugsley, in a memorial address to the William H. Trimble Post, G. A. R., at Rainsboro, Ohio, on Decoration Day, 1885:

“SOLDIERS OF THE GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC:

“Twenty years have passed since the close of the war, and during that time many thousands of soldiers have joined the un-numbered multitude who consecrated their devotion to liberty with their blood. In this county, as well as elsewhere, many good and true men have parted from their loving friends below, to meet their waiting comrades above. Among the truest and best must be classed Wm. H.

Trimble, after whom your Post is named. Col. Trimble was born in this county. It was his home throughout all the seventy years of his life. You were associated with him as citizens in the various avocations and enterprises of peace, and as soldiers in the defense of the country. You knew him in peace and in war, as a citizen and a soldier. Some of you knew him intimately in youth, in middle age, and in the decline of life. By those who had such knowledge of him I am supported in the statement that there needs no veil of distance or of time to hide the blameless record of his life; as a citizen of this country and as a soldier of the Union he was worthy the honor you have bestowed upon his memory. There was no other spot on earth so dear to him as this, the county of his birth; no other people than its citizens that he loved so well. If we carry with us beyond the grave the feelings that animate us here, it will gratify him to-day, I know, as he looks down from a happier world, to see that his old friends and neighbors and companions and comrades remember him so kindly. He was distinguished here, as he would have been anywhere, by those who might know him well, as a gentleman. I mean not merely birth, or position in society, or association with any particular class, or by a studied and educated observance of the amenities and courtesies of life, but owing to the innate chivalry and refinement and purity of his mind, and the tenderness of his heart.

“‘Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are of good report;’ he thought on these things, and regulated his conduct by them, and appreciated and sought the society of those who possessed them, whatever might be their condition in life. He could tolerate no ridicule of any good and well-deserving persons, however ignorant or unfortunate, or absurd their conduct appeared to others. No slander of the integrity of man or the honor of woman could have been uttered in his presence without an instantaneous rebuke. I need not say to the people of this county that he was a generous, self-sacrificing and public-spirited man. You all know that he devoted his time, and energy and talents, and what would have amounted to two fortunes to the service of the public, without receiving or asking the slightest reward. He was a thoroughly honest man. Some men are moderately honest because of the restraint of law; some, because of their love of approbation and to enjoy a good reputation; others, because ‘honesty is the best policy’; Col. Trimble was born honest. It was not a matter of education, it was a part of his nature, and it would have been impossible for him to be otherwise. He would have been indignant, it is true, if others had defrauded him, but he would have been wretched and miserable if conscious that he had injured them. It was necessary for his happiness and peace of mind that he should be absolutely just and upright, so he wronged no man. Peace to his ashes, and long life to his memory! Along with the flowers that have been placed upon his grave to-day, I lay this tribute, that he was a generous, brave, and honest man.”

SEVENTH (1840) GENERATION.

JOHN BUCKINGHAM, born July 25, 1826, in Zanesville, Ohio, son of Ebenezer and Eunice (Hale) Buckingham; has been twice married: First, October 18, 1847, to Harriet Lewis Bennet, daughter of Thaddeus and Deborah L. Bennet, of Fairfield, Ct.

Mrs. Harriet L. B. Buckingham died May 25, 1860, at Fairfield, Ct., and interred there.

Second, November 6, 1866, to Kate Mosely Buck, who was born February 1, 1833, at Wethersfield, Conn., daughter of Winthrop and Eunice (Mosely) Buck.

Mr. John Buckingham died August 21, 1881, at Pittsfield, Mass., and interred at Fairfield, Ct.

Mr. Buckingham was educated at his brother's Grammar School in Mt. Vernon, Ohio, and at Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio. Almost immediately after leaving college he went in partnership with his cousins, Benjamin H. Buckingham and William Sturges, in the mercantile business, at Zanesville, Ohio, in his father's old store, which partnership continued until the summer of 1848, when he removed to New York City and went into partnership with Mess. Bartlett & Perry, wholesale grocers, taking up his residence at Fairfield, Ct. Continuing in that business until 1853, when he became one of the firm of Adams & Buckingham, 17 South St., New York City; E.

Buckingham & Co., Zanesville, Ohio, and Adams & Graham, Cairo, Ill., all produce and forwarding commission business; these firms all succumbed under the great financial crash of the great money panic in July, 1857. Shortly after that he went into the elevator business in Brooklyn, N. Y., where he continued until the fall of 1863, when he removed to Chicago, Ill., and became General Superintendent of the Illinois Central elevators, owned by his uncles, A. Buckingham and S. Sturges. In 1866, the lease of the premises occupied by the Central Elevators of Chicago expired, and they reverted to the Illinois Central Railroad Company, the owners of the ground. The two brothers then formed a partnership, under the firm name of J. & E. Buckingham, and leased the same premises, purchased the buildings from the railroad company, and prosecuted the elevator business with eminent success. In 1871, warehouse "A" was consumed in the great Chicago fire, yet for fifteen years the business was managed so successfully that each of the partners had accumulated a handsome fortune. But at the summit of his success, Mr. Buckingham was suddenly stricken down at his country home near Pittsfield, Mass. He passed away almost in a moment, without warning and without a struggle, leaving his wife and children stunned by the suddenness of the blow.

In many respects Mr. Buckingham was a remarkable man. He had an extraordinary faculty of securing the love and confidence of his friends, owing to his kindness of heart, generosity of disposition, and constant thoughtfulness for the welfare of others. The attachment for him was so great, even among mere acquaintances, that many of them felt upon hearing of his death, as if they had lost a brother. To his immediate relatives his loss has left a void which is unfathomable.

He was a man of great energy, full of enterprise, wise, far-seeing in forming his plans, and courageous in executing them. As a Christian, he was always ready to assist in every enterprise, and no worthy applicant for assistance was turned away empty.

EBENEZER BUCKINGHAM, born January 16, 1829, at Putnam, (now the Ninth Ward of Zanesville) Ohio, son of Ebenezer Buckingham, No. 1489 (born Feb. 9, 1778, near Ballstown, N. Y., and died at Zanesville, Ohio, Aug. 21, 1832) and Eunice (Hale) Buckingham, (born Oct. 22, 1792, at Glastonbury, Ct., the fifth child of Benjamin and Martha (Welles) Hale. She died at Zanesville, Ohio, Feb. 28, 1843); married May 5, 1853, in Zanesville, Ohio, to Lucy Sturges, who was born August 15, 1831, in Zanesville, Ohio, daughter of Solomon and Lucy (Hale) Sturges.

Mrs. Lucy S. Buckingham died July 6, 1889, in Chicago, Ill., and is interred in the family lot at Woodlawn Cemetery, Zanesville, Ohio.

Mr. E. Buckingham was the sixth of a family of seven children, and though deprived of his father at the early age of three and a half years, was brought up with tender care by a devoted mother, who was the social head of the religious circle of the community. She died when he was thirteen years of age.

He was prepared for college under the instruction of Rev. Henry Calhoun, at Zanesville, Ohio. Was graduated at Yale College in the class of 1848. After graduation he settled at Zanesville, engaging in the banking and commission business. He was married by Rev. Addison Kingsbury, May 5, 1853, to Lucy Sturges, daughter of Solomon and Lucy (Hale) Sturges, at her father's house in Putnam. He removed to Chicago, Ill., in November, 1859, and in 1862 was engaged with his brother-in-law, George Sturges, in the grain storage business at the old Fulton Elevator in Chicago, and afterwards with his brother, John Buckingham, in the same business in Brooklyn, N. Y. In 1865, he built a residence at the north-west corner of Huron and St. Clair Sts., where he was living when it was burned in the great fire which devastated Chicago, October 9, 1871. In 1877, he built the house at the north-west corner of Prairie Ave. and 21st St., Chicago, where he—1892—resides. The family have their summer residence at Lake Forest, Ill., on the shore of Lake Michigan, 28 miles north of Chicago.

In October, 1866, his brother John and he purchased the elevators owned in Chicago by the Illinois Central Railroad Company. The firm of J. & E. Buckingham continued the grain storage business successfully for twenty years, and were well known throughout the State, having grain elevators at Cairo, East Dubuque and several other points on the Illinois Central lines. He united with his two brothers, Catharinus and John, in 1873, in establishing the Chicago Steel Works, of which company, after the death of his brother, C. P., in 1888, he was made President. In 1886, with his son Clarence, he bought the stock of the Central Elevator Co., but in January, 1892, they retired from the storage business.

In 1883, he was elected President of the Traders' Insurance Co., of Chicago, and still holds that office.

After the death of Mr. George Sturges, in August, 1890, who had been for many years President of the North-western National Bank of Chicago, Mr. Buckingham was elected President, and still continues in that position.

In 1851, he united with the Presbyterian church, at Putnam, Ohio. On his removal to Chicago, he with his wife connected themselves with the First Presbyterian church in that city. In 1888, he was elected an elder in that church, but two years after declined a re-election. His wife died at Chicago, July 6, 1889, greatly beloved by all who had the opportunity of knowing her sterling worth. She was buried in the family lot at Woodlawn Cemetery, Zanesville, Ohio.

SEVENTH (1842) GENERATION.

WILLIAM BUCKINGHAM, born July 30, 1832, in Zanesville, Ohio, son of Ebenezer Buckingham (born Feb. 9, 1778, near Ballston, N. Y., and Eunice (Hale) Buckingham (born October 22, 1792, at Glastonbury, Ct.).

He died in Putnam (now a part of Zanesville), Ohio, on the 11th of December, 1855. He was one of a large circle of relatives and friends, and his death somewhat unexpected, was to them a sudden shock. He was the youngest son of Ebenezer Buckingham, well known as one of the pioneers of Ohio, whose energy and wealth did much to develop the resources of the State. He was but an infant when his father died and but a child when deprived of his surviving parent. Still there was a purity of principle in his heart, which made up for the loss of parentage.

His integrity of character, unflinching urbanity, active benevolence and unexclusive manner toward all with whom he came in contact, marked him as a valuable citizen and a worthy man. But he had other graces of character, those finer filaments of heart and culture which make no display in the world, but find fitting development at HOME. Gentle and kind, thoughtful and generous, he was ever welcomed at the hearthstone. No unkind word or act ever ruffled the smooth surface of his life. Tranquil and happy he moved amidst his friends, cherished and beloved.

He grew into manhood unstained by vice, simple-hearted and truly christian. Having ample means at his command, he preferred to spend them in deeds of benevolence, to which from his earliest years he was a contributor; in the encouragement of the fine arts, for he had a taste as exquisite as it was fine, and in the cultivation of those socialities which so endeared him to his friends. His mind was singularly bent. He was an enthusiastic floriculturist and watched day by day the plants of his green house, as if they were sentient beings conscious of his devotion. He was hardly less devoted to the science of birds, collections of which he made, and works about which he studied with unflinching delight. Flowers and birds we naturally associate together, as he did; but he had another specialty in his mind. He loved the science of Mechanics, took especial delight in watching their results and studying the springs of mechanical power, in all its phases.

From youth, he had made it a study and it seemed to be the controlling inclination of his life.

Combining thus a taste for the beautiful with the useful, and ennobling both by the purity of a benevolent and pious heart, his death could not fail to be regarded as a calamity.

The white roses which he watched were just blooming under his culture for the chaplet of his bride—we saw them bestrewn over his breathless form.

The beautiful Woodlawn Cemetery (Zanesville, Ohio) is as much indebted to him as to anyone else; though he was not the projector of it, nor a Trustee, yet the money he left it, in his will, was used to save its life during the financial panic of 1857, and to him are they indebted for the Lodge, gateway, and an income each year to keep the cemetery in order.

He lies buried in a lot, of his own selection, on the North Mound.

FIDELIA BUCKINGHAM, born August 16, 1812, in Newark, Ohio, daughter of Bradley and Maria (Darlington) Buckingham; married December 8, 1831, in Newark, Ohio, to Rev. James Harrison, who was born October 29, 1802, at Orange, N. J., son of Thomas and Nancy (Osborne) Harrison, of Newark, N. J.

Rev. Harrison died May 26, 1877, at Waterloo, Iowa, and was interred there.

Mrs. Fidelity B. Harrison lives — 1892 — at Waterloo, Iowa.

Rev. James Harrison took his academic course at Bloomfield, N. J., and his collegiate course at Williams College, Mass., after which he taught a classical school at Alexandria, Va.

In the year 1828, he entered Princeton Theological Seminary and remained there three years preparing for the ministry. In 1831, he took charge of the First Presbyterian church at Newark, Ohio; while there married Fidelity Buckingham, and soon after removed to Dresden, where he remained as pastor of the Presbyterian church, ten years; he also served other churches during his twenty years' residence in the State, with great acceptability, being particularly useful among the young people of his congregation. In 1855, he removed West as a home missionary, and took charge of the Presbyterian church at Waterloo, Iowa. He began at once, with characteristic energy, the prosecution of missionary work, organizing churches and Sunday schools in the surrounding country. By his earnest sympathy and loving care for others, he laid the foundation for the strong friendships that only ended with his life. The exposure incident to the life of a home missionary soon began to tell on his delicate constitution, and the last fifteen years were spent in semi-invalidism.

Rev. Harrison was a scholarly man of more than ordinary ability, strong as a sermonizer and expounder of the Scripture. Few men have exercised a better influence, or wielded a more beneficent power in the churches. He died at the old homestead, surrounded by his family, May 26, 1877. All the people said, "A good man has fallen."

Mrs. Fidelity Harrison, at the age of thirteen, entered an academy at Zanesville, and spent two years in taking a preparatory course; she was then sent to Troy, N. Y., to finish her education, under "Madam Emma Willard;" returned home in 1830. The early years of her married life were spent at different points in Ohio, and her children were all born in her native State. In 1855, she moved with her family to Waterloo, Iowa, where for many years she aided her husband in the arduous duties attending the life of a home missionary in a new country.

Mrs. Harrison is (1892) living at her home in Waterloo, Iowa, and though nearly eighty years old, is in full possession of her faculties. A faithful mother, a true friend, she is greatly beloved by the community in which she has so long been an influence for good. "Her children rise up and call her blessed."

Rev. Buckingham, at the age of thirteen entered the Ohio University at Athens, and graduated from that institution in September, 1833. The spring following he entered the Western Theological Seminary at Allegheny City, Pa., where he remained two years; then spent nine months as a teacher in Edgeworth Female Seminary, at Braddock's Field, Pa. In September, 1836, he was licensed to preach the Gospel, by the Presbytery, in Granville, Ohio, and ordained in September, 1838, at Lawinsville, Ohio. In May, 1839, he removed to Coshocton, and remained in charge of the Second Presbyterian church until May, 1846, when he received a call to the First church of Canton. For nearly thirty years the devoted preacher ministered to the spiritual wants of his congregation, and only resigned his pastorate to accept the position of principal of the Putnam Female Seminary, at Zanesville, Ohio. In March, 1866, he buried his wife, "One whose counsels, and prayers, and sympathies, and labors, greatly aided him in his work for the Master. Her name, her virtues, her self-denying labors, are remembered with gratitude by very many in the congregation in which her life as a pastor's wife was spent."

The Sabbath evening before his death, he preached in the Putnam Presbyterian church, Zanesville, Ohio, from the words: "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul, or, what shall a man give in exchange for his soul."

Mrs. E. Buckingham lives (1892) with Rev. Lewis Gregory, Lincoln, Neb.

DR. EBENEZER MILTON BUCKINGHAM, born August 15, 1824, in Carthage Township, Athens County, Ohio, son of Milton and Belinda (Cooley) Buckingham. Has been twice married: 1st, October 16, 1850, in Toledo, Ohio, to Mary M. Berdan, who was born January 9, 1830, in Brunswick, Ohio. She died November 29, 1865.

2d, April 25, 1867, at Lafayette, Ind., to Caroline E. Starring, who was born March 27, 1838, at Buffalo, N. Y. She died April 28, 1884, and Dr. Buckingham died November 25, 1884, in Springfield, Ohio, and both were interred in Ferncliff Cemetery, Springfield, Ohio.

Dr. Buckingham received a rudimentary and preparatory education in select schools, and graduated from Kenyon College in 1846. He afterwards read medicine with the late Dr. Rodgers, of Springfield, and began the practice of his profession there, his first experience being in 1849, still remembered as the terrible cholera year. In the winter of 1849-50, he attended lectures at and graduated from Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia. He was the oldest surviving member of the Clark County Medical Society, and was for some years President of the Society. He contributed materially to the improvement of the city and county.

Dr. Buckingham made a highly creditable record as a volunteer surgeon during the war, his professional skill and personal prowess uniting to make him successful in the care of the injured in battle.

He was a man of sturdy character and marked personality. He was a man of vast industry and of kind amiability of disposition. He was thoroughly devoted to his profession, a fact that accounts in a large degree for his success as a practitioner. He was a man of deep earnestness, and took a warm general interest in the affairs of his family and the community. He had marked domestic tendencies and was inclined to broad liberality in his views. He was a consistent Christian gentleman, and a member of Christ church, Episcopal. He enjoyed a high professional standing among his brother physicians, and held the deserved confidence and liberal patronage of the community. He was a fine type of the old school of physicians—thorough in his attainments, successful in his practice, kind, fatherly and venerable.

ELISABETH BUCKMINSTER MILES, born December 21, 1819, in Athens Co., Ohio, daughter, of Joseph B. and Elisabeth (Buckingham) Miles; married September 7, 1837, to Henry E. Morrill.

Mrs. Elisabeth Morrill died September 25, 1837.

BENJAMIN HALE BUCKINGHAM, born July 26, 1820, in Zanesville, Ohio, son of Alvah and Anna (Hale) Buckingham; married November 11, 1845, in Zanesville, Ohio, to Martha Euretta Potwin, who was born July 12, 1822, in New York City, fourth child of John S. and Sophia (Marsh) Potwin.

Mr. B. H. Buckingham died November 6, 1864, at Madison, N. J., and is interred in Woodlawn Cemetery, Zanesville, Ohio.

His family reside—1892—at 182 Rush St., Chicago, Ill.

Mr. Benjamin Buckingham was educated at Athens, Ohio, and in 1840 was made cashier of the old Bank of Muskingum, of which his father was president, and continued as such until 1845, when the charter expired. He then entered into the mercantile business with his cousin, William Sturges, in the same building, which was on the west bank of the Muskingum river, just below the Sixth St. bridge, that had been occupied by their uncle and parents since 1810. He continued in this business until the fall of 1851, when he removed to New York City, where he opened a produce commission house, under the name of Buckingham & McCulloh (composed of his father, brother Philo, and J. W. McCulloh), with branch houses of Buckingham & Guthrie in Buffalo, N. Y., and P. Buckingham & Co., Toledo, and A. Buckingham & Sons, Zanesville, Ohio. In 1856, Mr. McCulloh retiring from the firm of Buckingham & McCulloh, Mr. Buckingham continued in the commission business until June, 1857, when he removed to Chicago and built a house on the same lot on which his family now reside.

He was interested with his father in the old Fulton Elevator, the first one built in Chicago, at the foot of Cass St., and was associated with him in business until his death.

He was a very fine penman, and gathered a full genealogy of the descendants of Ebenezer Buckingham and Esther Bradley, in a manuscript volume, embracing between three and four hundred names, which has been of essential service to the compiler of this work in making out this branch of the family.

When only ten years old, he became a Christian, and joined the Putnam Presbyterian church, under Rev. William Beecher's charge, in 1835. He was singularly sincere and just in his dealings with men; of great Christian purity and behavior; a devoted and exemplary Christian all his life; a man of unblemished character and fine financial knowledge and ability; a man of superior mental and moral qualities.

SEVENTH (1892) GENERATION.

JULIA ANNA BUCKINGHAM, born March 9, 1829, in Zanesville, Ohio, daughter of Alvah and Anna (Hale) Buckingham; married October 11, 1849, in Zanesville, Ohio, to Samuel Sullivan Cox, who was born September 30, 1824, at Zanesville, Ohio, son of Hon. Ezekiel Taylor Cox and Maria (Sullivan) Cox.

Hon. S. S. Cox died September 10, 1889, in New York City, and was interred in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mrs. Julia A. Cox resides—1892—at No. 13 East 12th St., New York City, N. Y.

No children.

Hon. S. S. Cox was the son of Hon. Ezekiel Taylor Cox (son of General James Cox, of New Jersey,) and Maria Sullivan Cox (daughter of Judge Samuel Sullivan, of New Jersey), both parents having descended from Revolutionary ancestors. Samuel S. Cox was educated in the city schools of Zanesville, spent two years in college at Athens, Ohio, and graduated in 1846 at Brown University, Providence, R. I. From this college he received in after years the degrees of M.A. and LL.D. In 1847, he studied law with the firm of Goddard & Convers, in Zanesville, Ohio, and in 1848 with the Hon. Vachel Worthington, of Cincinnati, Ohio. He became the junior member of the firm of Strait & Cox in the same year, and united with the First Presbyterian church. In 1850, he returned to Zanesville and formed a partnership with Judge Searles in the practice of the law. In 1858, he removed to Columbus, Ohio, taking charge of the "Ohio Statesman," the leading Democratic paper of the State. He was chairman of the Democratic State Committee of Ohio, and continued his law practice. When thirty years of age, President Pierce appointed him Secretary of Legation to Great Britain, but afterwards transferred him to Peru. At thirty-two, in 1856, he was elected Member of Congress and continued eight years from Ohio. In 1864, he had many successful cases before the New Grenadan Convention at Washington. In 1865, he removed to New York City to continue the law practice, under the firm name of Cox & Lewis. In 1869, he was elected Member of Congress from New York City and was in almost continuous service until his death. The only break was his resignation in 1885, when he was appointed Minister to Turkey by President Cleveland. Here he negotiated a long-urged treaty, but for state reasons connected with other countries, it was not acted upon by our Government. After serving as Minister for eighteen months, he was stricken with a hemorrhage and resigned. Shortly after his return home, came the "Decoration of the Mejidieh" from His Imperial Majesty, the Sultan of Turkey, the Minister's wife having received the "Order of the Shefakat" while in Constantinople. Immediately on his return, Mr. Cox was urged to accept the nomination for Mayor of New York City, but a vacancy occurring in the District from which he resigned as Member, he preferred Congressional life, and combining the two elections,—of the vacancy in the term from which he had resigned, and the next term,—was elected, making eighteen years of service as Member from New York City. His death occurred September 10th, 1889, on the eve of the new term.

Mr. Cox was a delegate to the four National Democratic Conventions of 1860, '64, '68, and '76. He was a great student, and knew much of the Bible by heart.

As lawyer, lecturer, author and statesman he held a conspicuous place in his country. As lawyer, shown by his love of and success in the profession; as lecturer, by his numerous calls, interspersed most liberally with lectures for charity; as author, by his many books of travel, of history and of public themes; as statesman, by his able discussions on the tariff and on all commercial and international questions; by his advocacy of the cause of the Hebrews against Russian persecution (for which he received the "Thanks of the Hebraic Alliance Universelle"); by his success in the letter carriers' and postal service bills; and especially by the establishment on a firmer basis, of the life-saving service.

His latest effort was to aid in bringing into the Union the four new States of the great North-west, Montana, Washington and the two Dakotas.

On the Fourth of July, 1891, in New York City, a bronze statue in memory of Mr. Cox was unveiled by "The grateful Letter Carriers of New York City and the United States."

On the twelfth of December, 1891, in their home in Washington, D. C., was presented to Mrs. Cox "in recognition of the service of her distinguished husband" a beautiful memorial vase, "by the members of the Life Saving service of the United States."

Mr. James Buckingham was educated at Marietta, Ohio, and Brown University, R. I., leaving the latter place in February, 1852, on account of ill health. A part of the winter of 1852 and 1853 he was in his father's elevator in Chicago. In June, 1854, he invented the cogs placed on the outside of the driving wheels used on all mowing and reaping machines,—but did not patent it. In September, 1863, he removed from his farm at Duncan's Falls, Ohio (where he had lived since April, 1853,) to the house in Zanesville, where he was born, and where he still resides. The spring and summer of 1864, he was a member of Co. A, 159th O. V. I., stationed in Virginia and Maryland. From January, 1865, to January, 1873, he was a director of the Ohio State Agricultural Society, four years of the time its Treasurer, and one year,—1872,—its President. Also one of the trustees of the Central Lunatic Asylum, at Columbus, Ohio, to finish, furnish, and open it. Also President of the Zanesville & Ohio River Railroad, from its beginning to completion. Has been interested in farms, ranches and wild lands in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska.

WALDO BUCKINGHAM GUTHRIE, born July 22, 1818, in Zanesville, Ohio, son of Julius Chappell and Pamela (Buckingham) Guthrie; married in Cleveland, Ohio, June 20, 1844, to Jane Elizabeth Clark, who was born August 26, 1821, in Utica. N. Y.

Mr. W. B. Guthrie was a man of a most sensitive nature; a model of honesty and truthfulness, and always faithful to his principles and friends. He was a staunch Republican, and ever sincere to the cause of our country in its hour of peril and danger. He was the embodiment of generosity and kindness, and knew no languor when humanity called for relief.

Mr. Guthrie died September 18, 1866, in Zanesville, Ohio, and Mrs. Guthrie died March 8, 1876, in Rochester, Ind. Both are interred in Woodlawn Cemetery, Zanesville, Ohio.

No children.

SEVENTH (1906) GENERATION.

SOLOMON STURGES GUTHRIE, born August 30, 1819, in Zanesville, Ohio, son of Julius Chappell and Pamela (Buckingham) Guthrie; married August 29, 1844, in Newark, Ohio, to Anna Jane Sherwood, who was born April 25, 1824, in Greenfield, Ct., daughter of Buckingham and Susan Sherwood.

Mrs. Anna Sherwood Guthrie died May 26, 1880, in Buffalo, N. Y.

In the year 1835, Sturges entered the store of his father and uncle, Albert Austin Guthrie, in Putnam (now Ninth ward of Zanesville) Ohio. He remained with them until 1837, when he and his brother, Frank, went to Gambier, Ohio, and entered the Grammar School, educating himself at his own expense. There being no railroads in those days, they started in a wagon with baggage and bedding for "Kenyon"—fifty miles away. They arrived under favorable circumstances and were warmly welcomed by Bishop McIlvain, who was President of the College. There they remained, pursuing their studies until the spring of 1838, when they returned home. Sturges again entered the store, which was now organized under the name of J. C. Guthrie & Sons. It was composed of J. C. Guthrie and his two sons, Waldo Buckingham and Solomon Sturges Guthrie.

He continued there until the fall of 1838, when they opened a branch in Rehobeth, Perry County, Ohio, of which he took charge. The desire for knowledge again asserting itself too strongly to be overcome, he gave up this position in 1840, and went to the Ohio University, at Athens, Ohio, of which William H. McGuffey was President. Remaining there until July, 1841, he returned home and again entered the mercantile business with his father and brother, Waldo, continuing in it until the decease of his father in 1849.

In 1847, in company with Gen. S. R. Curtis and family, he took a trip via the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to Keokuk, Ia., with some thought of remaining there, but abandoning the idea he returned home via Chicago and the lakes. Here he remained until the spring of 1851, when he went to Buffalo, N. Y., and entered the commission business under the firm name of Buckingham & Guthrie (his partners being his uncle, Alvah Buckingham, and his two sons, Benjamin and Philo Buckingham), opening branch houses in Chicago, Toledo, and New York. In 1856, the firm was dissolved and a new one organized under the name of Clark, Guthrie & Sturges (being Cyrus Clark, S. S. Guthrie and Edward Sturges). This firm did a large business until the fall of 1857, when the great financial disaster of that year overcame them. But he could not be conquered; his energy and the unbounded confidence in his integrity and business capacity soon reinstated him, and gave him a place among the best business men of the city of his adoption.

He has from his youth been an active member of the Presbyterian church, and always devoted much time and money to the cause of Sunday schools and charitable works of the city in which he lives. He was elected and served one year as president of both the Board of Trade of Buffalo, and Young Men's Christian Association, and has several times represented the Buffalo Board of Trade in the National Board of Trade Conventions. A staunch Republican, he for three years represented his ward in the city council, and was sought by his party as a nominee for Mayor, but declined; and during the great war, although too old to enlist, sent a man to the service.

In 1874 he was elected and served for ten years as director and agent of the New York, Lake Erie and Western R. R., and was ten years president of the Union Steamboat Company and Union Dry Dock Company of Buffalo. Now he is senior partner of the firm of S. S. Guthrie & Son (Harry S.), commission merchants, of Buffalo, N. Y.—1892.

2d, April 10, 1853, in Zanesville, Ohio, to Hon. Hugh Judge Jewett, who was born July —, 1817, in Harford County, Md.

They now—1892—reside in Glenville, Md.

Hon. H. J. Jewett commenced the study of law in the office of Col. John C. Croome, in Elkton, Cecil Co., Md., and was admitted to practice in 1838. He immediately became interested in the great West, and with the great tide of immigration turned his face thitherward and located in St. Clairsville, Ohio, where he remained until 1848, when he felt that Zanesville was a wider field for his expanding power, and moved to that city, where he won great success as a lawyer, banker, railroad official and politician. He was elected to the State Senate, in 1868-9, and to Congress in 1873, and during his term he was elected president of the Erie Railroad Company, and resigned his seat to assume the duties of that trying position, and re-organized that company under great difficulties, and by his sagacity placed it among the successful railroads of the country. His prior connection with the Central Ohio, Little Miami, Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, and Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St. Louis, had given vast experience, and fitted him to take the responsibility of the Erie, which he assumed for ten years. Few men have had more honors conferred, and none filled them with greater credit. He, now, like Cincinnatus of old, has retired to his farm and enjoys the honors he won.

WILLIAM BARKER CUSHING, born November 4, 1842, at Delafield, Wis., son of Dr. Milton B. and Mary B. (Smith) Cushing; married Feb. 22, 1870 in Fredonia, N. Y., to Katharine Louise Forbes, of Fredonia, who was born Sept. 18, 1847, daughter of David S. and Catharine (Abell) Forbes.

William B. Cushing was left fatherless at the age of four years, and his mother, with her family of small children, removed to Fredonia, N. Y., where the grandfather and other members of the Cushing family resided. Here, William attended an excellent Academy till, at the age of fourteen he received the appointment of Cadet Midshipman at the Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. He distinguished himself by many daring exploits during the War—the most famous of which was the destruction of the rebel ram “Albemarle,” October 27, 1864. The brilliancy of this exploit is unparalleled in history. Five times he was publicly thanked by the Navy department and for the “Albemarle” affair received the “Thanks of Congress,” the highest honor our Government could pay, only six naval officers received this honor during the war,—all older men,—but Cushing was only twenty-one years of age. He commanded a ship at nineteen years of age and captured the first prize of the war, the “Delaware Farmer.”

Some time after the war, in 1870, when twenty-seven years of age, he married Miss Katharine Forbes of Fredonia. He was the youngest man of his rank in the navy and would have been the youngest Admiral, had he lived,—but the hardships of the service, especially the two years work in the blockading service,—before he was a man grown—was too great a strain upon his delicate, nervous organization, and was the cause of his death at the age of thirty-two years.

“Man’s life is long which answers life’s great end”—

He had accomplished more for the benefit of the world, in his short life than many men attain at twice his age.

He died in Washington, D. C., December 17, 1874, and was buried at the Naval Academy Cemetery, Annapolis, Md.

From Tracy, Minn., he started for Alaska, but was taken ill (typhoid fever) on the journey west, and died on board the steamer Idaho, and was buried at Astoria, Oregon.

NOTE "D."

A will of Attawanhood, third son of Uncas, is signed March 10, 1676, in Lyme, near Eight-Mile Island, in Connecticut River. He gave to his sons a large tract of land, apparently north-west of Saybrook, with the condition that if one died it should go to the survivor, and if both died, to their sister. He also left them forty acres at Podunk, and about a half a mile square within a tract which had a little previously been added to Hartford. These lands, if his three sons died, were to revert to his wives. The rest of his property was given away in enormous tracts, to various white persons of Hartford, Saybrook and other places. Whole townships, as for instance, those of Windham, Mansfield and Canterbury, were included. A single grant covered 100,000 acres, and the whole line of lands reached eighteen miles north and south, and in some places east and west. The Indians who then resided on his territories, he directed to leave them and attach themselves to his father, Uncas. His sons he directed to live near Saybrook, to be taught English by their mother, and, at the end of four years to be placed at an English school. Thirty-five pounds which were owing to him by certain whites, as well as the rents of all the lands which he had left the boys, were to be expended in their support and education. He recommended his children earnestly to all his legatees, but more particularly to three whom he mentioned by name—Robert Chapman, William Pratt, and Thomas Buckingham. For himself, he directed that he should be buried at Saybrook, in a coffin, after the manner of the English.*

Whereas, the parties to these presents have purchased a farm in the townships of Windham and Lebanon, which was formerly part of their honored father's, Rev. Mr. Thomas Buckingham, late of Saybrook, deceased, and the other part thereof Abimeleck's, Joshua's (Uncas) son, which contains, by estimation, about 530 acres, more or less, lying and being on the south-west side of Willimanticueck River, bounded as followeth: The first bound begins at the mouth of Hop River, and runs 49½ rods upon the river to a walnut staddle, marked "—, etc." Again one of the bounds is a maple staddle, marked "T. D. B." It is signed and sealed at Saybrook, by Daniel Buckingham, May 24, 1722. Witnessed by Samuel Buckingham and Daniel Buckingham. Recorded February 15, 1760.

Deed of Abimeleck, Joshua's son, of six hundred acres of wilderness land, joining lands belonging to Thomas Buckingham, Sr., and John Clark, of Saybrook, dated Dec. 7th, 1702. Recorded at Lebanon, February 15, 1760.

There is also a deed of William Pitkin, of Hartford, and others, to Thomas and Daniel Buckingham, of Saybrook, of a certain farm or tract of land, sometimes called "Buckingham's Farm," being, by estimation, about 850 acres, lying southerly from the plantation of Coventry, and abuts west on Willimantueck River, north on Hop River, west by lands released to us by the said grantees, south on land sold to Capt. William Clark and Deacon Josiah Dewey, and part on land released to us by the abovesaid grantees; and also one hundred acres more adjoining to said farm, southwest and northwest. March 19, 1712, or 1713.

Witnessed by Abigail Lord and Margaret Butler. Entered, Feb. 15, 1760.

NOTE "G."

Lands of Thomas Buckingham, Jr., in Lebanon.

In volume 6 of Lebanon Records is what is entitled "The Village Proprietors' Patent," which comprises the title of the individuals within mentioned (a large number) to their lands, which belongs to Thomas Buckingham and John Clark. It begins, "Whereas, Thomas Buckingham and John Clark, both of Saybrook, in the County of New London, Colony of Connecticut, having purchased a large tract of land of Abimeleck, an Indian, a parcel of which they did, by deed well executed, bearing date Sept. 20, A. D. 1699, convey unto William Clark, Esq., lately of Lebanon, now deceased, and Josiah Dewey, of Lebanon, which is now in the County of Windham, and Colony of Connecticut aforesaid. And whereas, the said William Clark and Josiah Dewey have conveyed a certain parcel thereof, lying in the township of Lebanon aforesaid." It bounds it from the west side of Capt. John Mason's land to run northerly, leaving a mile at the upper end to the river Willimantock or Shetucket, against Windham, and "to hold a straight line until it come within a mile and a quarter of Hartford gentlemen's land, then bounded by a west line until it come to Saybrook men's land, south by the west line that divides between Abimeleck and Owaneco. Agreed on by the Commissioners appointed by the General Courts." Recorded at New London, Sept. 21, 1699. On the next page is an agreement signed by Buckingham and Clark, securing to the same a clear title to the land.

In volume 4, of Land Records, in Lebanon, is the following entry: "I, Thomas Buckingham, of Saybrook, for and from good considerations of love, good-will, and affection which I have and do bear towards my son Samuel Buckingham, of the town, county, and colony aforesaid," give 320 acres in the town of Lebanon, valued at £200, May 24, 1722.

In volume 8, of Lebanon Records, is the following entry: "Indenture made March 28, 1711, between Thomas and Daniel Buckingham, of Saybrook and James Babcock, of Windham, of the County of Hartford." They had purchased a farm, what was formerly Mr. Thomas Buckingham's and Mr. John Clark's, of Saybrook, containing, by estimation, 500 acres, lying on the southwest side of Willimanticock River, beginning at a tree marked "T. B. & J. C.," then it makes a division of the same. There are other singular entries, but the above are sufficient to show that he was a large landholder in Lebanon. Some of this land he held by purchase, but probably more of it by gift from his father, who held large tracts as one of the legatees of Attawanhood, the son of Uncas, in connection with Robert Chapman and William Pratt.

NOTE "H."

Lands of Daniel Buckingham, son of Rev. Thomas Buckingham, in Lebanon. Vol. 8. "Deed of Abimeleck, Joshua's son, of six hundred acres of wilderness land, joining land belonging to Thomas Buckingham, Sen., and John Clark, of Saybrook, dated Dec. 7, 1702."

Deed of William Pitkin, of Hartford, and others, to Thomas and Daniel Buckingham, of Saybrook, of a certain farm or tract of land, sometimes called "Buckingham's Farm," being, by estimation, about 850 acres, lying southerly from the plantation of Coventry; and abuts west on Willimantuck River, north on the Hop River, west by land released to us by the said grantees, south on land sold to Capt. William Clark and Deacon Josiah Dewey, in part, and part on land released to us by the above grantees; and also 100 acres more adjoining to said farm, southwest and northwest. March 19, 1712 or 1713.

NOTE "I."

Lands assigned to Mr. Buckingham as a part of his salary. The deed of the lands granted to Mr. Buckingham as his settlement, bears date April 7, 1699.

1. One home lot, four acres, bounded east by the land of Thomas Betts, and the common fence, partly; west, the town's highway; north, the home lot of Thomas Seamer; south, land and home lot of heirs of John Raymond, Senior, deceased, with the house which is now built.

2. Land in the field, swamp and upland, sixteen acres; one-half to him and his heirs forever, the other half, after his decease, to return to the town.

3. Ten acres of upland lying in the woods, lying near the town over the North Brook, so called.

4. Three score acres of land in the woods, bounded by marked trees, adjoining part of the land of Samuel Hayes and Ensign John Belden, above Chestnut Hill.

5. Salt marsh meadows, two acres, bounded east by the Cove, and north and northwest by the bank of upland, south by a fence and a small creek near John Bouton's meadow.

6. Three hundred pounds right in commonage.

Mr. Buckingham (No. 1489) who had no taste for farming, had established a trading post at Coshocton, Ohio, which town he surveyed and laid out. He was at this time unmarried and his sister, Esther (No. 1491), kept house for him. Some of the family now living remember hearing her tell of the fright she had once when her brother was away from home on a survey.

About sixty Indians came one afternoon to the opposite bank of the river, evidently preparing for a performance of some kind. They called for the boat so that they might get over to the store. Esther was alarmed at their numbers and actions, and did not respond to their calls; finally one of their women swam over and got the boat and by that they were soon all brought across. Then came a demand for whiskey. They were going to have a war-dance that night and must have some whiskey. Esther at first refused to let them have it,—she did not know what they might do if they became intoxicated. One of the women seeing her unwillingness to gratify them attacked her with a knife and came very near stabbing her in the side, but Esther, springing quickly back, ran into the house and seizing her brother's loaded whip gave the woman a severe beating. The Indians did not interfere, but after it was over renewed their demand.

Seeing there was no help for it, she told them that if they would go off to the "mouth of the Big Prairie" and stay there she would sell them some whiskey,—but that only two of their number should come back for it. This was agreed to and they all went away. In the meantime she emptied out part of the contents of the cask, so that when the two Indians came for it there was not enough left to do much mischief. The Indian women took the arrows and hatchets of their braves and hid them away so that no one should be hurt, but their howls and shrieks made a wakeful night for Esther.

POMFRET, CHAUTAUQUA Co., N. Y., March 15, 1846.

MY DEAR NEPHEW, BENJAMIN H. BUCKINGHAM:

I received your kind letter last week, and rejoice to hear that you all appear to be in usual health; we are so, except having hard colds. We both have hard coughs, hope we shall soon be better, hope this may find you in as good health as when you wrote, and as you say you have left the ranks of the odd fellows and have gotten such a beautiful woman, I wish you both all the happiness this world can afford. Hope if I shall ever be so fortunate as to visit in that place to see you and your wife in at your own happy home, for that is the greatest blessing; endeavor to make it a sweet home. I expect you do not mean to forsake all other society, but those you can mingle with occasionally, but for the most part be at home with your wife. You have not told me her name or nation, so that I cannot call her anything but wife or Mrs. Buckingham. I hope she will write to me herself, and then I shall know her name myself.

Perhaps Julia Ann will write with her. Have you got to housekeeping yet? Tell when you write again and where you live. I feel more interested in that part of my family, that I am acquainted with, than I do in those of my ancestors.

I was brought up almost in obscurity. I lived with grandmother Buckingham (Elizabeth Sherwood) until I was 12 years old the February before, she died in August, 1792. She sometimes would amuse us by telling us some stories. But I never remember hearing anything about any property or will of grandfather, only she said he died off at sea, but I do not remember the name of the ship or place where, in the year,—in the year 1762. Brother Ebenezer went to Connecticut and when he returned he told me that uncle Albert Sherwood had given him grandfather's will. I did not see the will; he said uncle said he should never do anything to try to get the land, for it had been so long lying he thought likely it would be occupied, and be attended with a good deal of expense. As Ebenezer was young and might possibly go some where near, he gave him the will and you may possibly find the will among some of his old papers, and by that you would learn his name and place of residence. I will not be positive, but I think his name was Stephen, and grandmother's Elizabeth Sherwood (sister was named for her). She lived 84 years and had the shaking palsy when young, so that she could not labor for 10 years. I never saw her do any work; she could not stand still, but could walk with a cane. She had four daughters and three sons. Uncle's name I have forgotten, he being dead before I was born; do not remember who was the oldest or how they ought to come along, but think father must have been one of the youngest children. I think that Buckingham Sherwood and Rachel Sherwood (our cousins) of Newark, O., could tell you much more than I, being a number of years older than I and their living in the same place, or near, where my father and mother were born and brought up and married; perhaps they can tell you what year they left their native place, but I cannot. I am not very good at recollecting dates.

Father was bound out when quite young to Mr. Albert Sherwood, his brother-in-law, where he lived until he was 21 years of age. He had no education and nothing to recommend him, and he had no property and no home. He went to his brother, and worked with him and learned his trade, which was laying brick, and then went to school and got so he could write and cipher enough to keep his accounts. His sisters' names I believe I remember except aunt Stackhouse. Rachel Sherwood's mother, named Anne and one married Solomon Sherwood, her name was Temma, or that was what they called her. She and a son and daughter visited at father's in 1788 (I think) to see us and grandmother Buckingham, for she lived with father in Ballston, for there we lived, it being the only time I ever saw Aunt or any of her family, I know not where they went; the last I heard from them they lived near the Mohawk river, above Schenectady; they did not move there until after father came to Cooperstown.

Aunt Rachel Buckingham married a man by the name of Gershom Gilbert; he lived near father in Ballston, but she died before he came to Ballston, and uncle was married again. Aunt Rachel left no children. I remember no dates of their ages or deaths. I cannot inform you when or how many there were came to America. I never saw any record on paper, and my memory will not extend very far back of my ancestors that I never saw. I thought when I was in Ohio I would get the record of father's family but neglected it, and now I can't be certain how old he and mother were when they died.

I am glad you have taken it in hand to get all the records. Don't fail, for I shall, if I live, be delighted to see them. In my poor way I will try and give you all the information I can. I will get the record of sister Rachel Cushing's family; I have seen mother's father, Rev. Elnathan Bradley, and been some acquainted with him, but not her mother or stepmother. My mother had only one own sister, she married a Perry, lived near grandfather Bradley. When grandfather Bradley came to Ballston, N. Y., uncle Thomas Perry came with him. I happened to be there on a visit. Mother had two half-sisters married there when father lived, named Jane and Hannah. Jane married Elijah (Raymond) or Ramond, and Hannah married a Rumsey. I do not recollect his first name, though they both lived in our neighborhood. Mother's sister, who kept house for grandfather Bradley, was Mabel, she had been married to a Mr. Holt of New London. She had two sons, one she kept and the other went to his grandfather in New London, I never heard anything about him. Aunt married again in Ballston, in a few years, and grandfather Bradley went to live with his oldest son, his second wife dying before he left Connecticut. He had sons Sturges and Peter, smart men, and one only a cipher, his name was Elnathan, named after grandfather Bradley. I have heard nothing of them since uncle Sturges Bradley went there to see mother (his sister) in 1818. He called on me both going and coming, grandfather Bradley was dead then. I cannot remember the year of his death. My hand is tired.

I have my paper full before I was aware of it.

Your aff Aunt,

SARAH BUCKINGHAM SPRAGUE.

POMFRET, CHAUTAUQUA Co., N. Y., April 12, 1846.

TO MY DEAR BENJAMIN H. BUCKINGHAM, Zanesville, Ohio.

As you request I will try and give you a little more information. was down to sister Rachel Buckingham Cushing's old home yesterday, her health is very much improved since I saw her before; she is now able to walk around the house and ride out, when the weather is pleasant; and has been to see Lucinda and Catherine, they and families are well.

—— is just married to a Miss King from Hamilton, in the east part of this State, expected him home last night; he is going to live with his mother. I am very glad of it, for she seems so lonely ever since her husband died.

My family are well as far as I know. You do not say anything about cousin Rachel Sherwood of Newark, Ohio, when you write.

I took the record of sister Rachel's family; Rachel Buckingham was born December 25, 1773, and her husband, Zattu Cushing, was born June 11, 1771, and they were married in Ballston, N. Y., in February, 1792, and moved directly from there to Paris, 40 miles east of Otsego, and lived there until the year 1805, when they moved to this town, during this time they had five children, and three born here; have not heard of the death of any of them. They had a letter from Walter Cushing a short time ago,— had been sick all winter with the asthma. His daughter has settled near him and has one child. Lucinda has three children living and four grandchildren. Lydia has five and three grandchildren. Catherine has five children.

I will now give you their births, that is the children of Zattu Cushing and Rachel Buckingham, his wife.

- Lucinda was born August 13, 1794.
- Walter “ June 23, 1796.
- Lydia “ March 13, 1798.
- Milton “ July 28, 1800.
- Zattu “ December 7, 1802.
- Catharine “ October 6, 1808.
- Alonzo “ September 27, 1810.
- Rachel “ August 24, 1813.

Sister Rachel died August 9, 1816, and brother Cushing January 11, 1839; both buried in Fredonia.

Perhaps you can get the rest of the records of Rathel's Zattu and Milton's families as I cannot tell you how many children they have. There was an incident in our father's life, which was always a source of great grief to him, and he could not relate it without shedding tears, and that was shooting his sister's boy, which happened on this wise: He was at his sister's house and there had been something among their chickens the night before, and that evening they were watching and had their guns prepared to shoot if they heard anything among them. The moon shone out bright. Uncle had one son, a boy, and he had a favorite rooster, and he slipped out unknown to any of the family, to make sure of that favorite, which caused the chickens to squak, this made the inmates of the house to run out with their guns, and one shot, where the noise seemed to come from (there being no light only where the moon shone through the cracks of the coop), not thinking of there being a person in danger. It happened to be father who made the shot, and he was, no doubt, as much astonished as any one of the family to find that he had shot his own sister's son. You can imagine his grief. Our father married young and soon went to settle in a new country, living on the frontier, when the Indians were very troublesome. He had to work very hard to maintain so large a family; he raised thirteen children, this is a large family to raise when one has but their own hands to help themselves with.

Please remember me to all the family, with love to your father and mother.

Your affectionate aunt,
SARAH BUCKINGHAM SPRAGUE.
